

Married Men Supporting Children Will Be Called As Final Group in Draft

Selective Service Officials Announced, However, That No Permanent Deferment May Be Counted Upon; Men Qualified for Essential Work To Be Given Opportunity before Being Drafted

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—A policy declaring that, generally speaking, married men with children would be the last to be drafted was promulgated by Selective Service headquarters tonight after President Roosevelt signed a bill designed by Congress to preserve the "institution of the home."

The bill also provided for financial assistance to dependents of men in the armed forces, part of the money to be contributed from the men's pay checks and part by the government.

In another major development, manpower chief Paul V. McNutt laid down a policy of giving men with essential skills a chance to find jobs in vital war industry before being inducted into the army.

He issued a directive to selective service saying:

"To the extent required for the maintenance of essential activities, individuals who are not engaged in essential occupations in essential activities but who are qualified in essential occupations are (to be) afforded reasonable opportunity, prior to induction under the Selective Training and Service act of 1940, to become so engaged."

What would happen to a worker if he refused to take an "essential" job without good reason was not stated, but the clear implication was that he would be swiftly drafted, if eligible. To that extent, the directive was a "work or fight" order.

Men May Be Transferred

Thus the possibility was raised that there would be many transfers of men from pursuits deemed non-essential, to war industries. The likelihood that some men might be transferred far from their present jobs was seen in McNutt's announcement that workers would be referred to essential jobs, "irrespective of the location of the work, in accordance with the relative need of filling such job openings under the national war supply program."

At the same time McNutt forged a lever for wage standardization in war industry by setting up machinery to deny labor priorities to industries "in which wages and conditions of work are not at least as advantageous to a worker referred to a job opening therein as the prevailing for similar establishments in the industrial area."

Selective service, in its announcement, established four broad categories to govern the order in which men shall be called into the armed service:

"Category 1. Registrants otherwise qualified for military service who have no bona-fide financial dependents.

Plans To Cancel State and County Fairs Protested

Representatives Declare Government Is Showing Discrimination

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—Representatives of state and county fairs protested to Director Joseph B. Eastman of the Office of Defense Transportation today against his request that such exhibitions be called off this year to save tires.

An answer to their suggestion that the order be modified was promised within twenty-four hours, said Maurice Jencks, manager of the Kansas Free Fair. He was one of a group of five spokesmen for the fairs who met with Eastman.

Terms of Discrimination
Jencks said the government was discriminating against fairs inasmuch as no request had been made that big league baseball, races and circuses shut down.

"The fair managers," he declared, "are willing to offer every co-operation possible toward winning the war, but we want the fairs to go on. The fairs in 1917 were a big help in the First World War, and President Wilson said they need not shut down."

Others in the group which called on Eastman were Frank Kingman, Brockton, Mass., secretary of the International Association of Fairs said to represent 2,200 state and county fairs; Raymond Lee, general manager of the Minnesota State Fair; Ralph Ammon, secretary of the Wisconsin State Fair; and Ralph Homphill, secretary of the Oklahoma State Fair.

Two Senators Protest
At least two senators interceded in behalf of the fairs. Senator Aiken (R-Vt.) in a letter addressed to Eastman protested against "any compulsory closing of county fairs or other agricultural gatherings unless dog racing, running races, harness races, circuses and other (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

Axis and British Armies Preparing All-out Fight on Egyptian Border

Rommel Shifts Forces South in Attempt To Outflank and Encircle England's Eighth Army

By EDWARD KENNEDY
CAIRO, June 24 (AP)—The main weight of Marshal Rommel's Axis armored columns was moving ponderously south tonight for a massive attempt to outflank and encircle the British eighth army's positions atop the Egyptian border escarpment.

Bombers and fighter-bombers of both the RAF and the Royal South African Air Force skimmed the baked floor of the desert to slash repeatedly at the increasing enemy transport. Battered light tanks and armored cars of the British defenders stabbed westward to engage the German advance guard west of Salum in a series of brief and bitter engagements.

In this northern zone, German artillery also sent shells screaming over the British lines.

Serve Only as Screen
But this bombardment, and the armored clashes which flickered and flared west of Salum, served only as a screen for the heavy movement of German and Italian tanks and troop lorries southward.

The position was one of final preparation on both sides for the initial battle of Egypt itself. The British were rushing fresh troops and equipment into the frontier zone in a supreme attempt to replace the men and machines lost at Tobruk; Rommel was getting into position for a flanking attack which may sweep through Port Maddalena, fifty miles southwest of Salum and Bir El Shegna, twenty miles deeper in the desert.

There was every sign that such an attack would start one of the most bitter and decisive battles of the war.

In this preparatory phase the British, plainly the "have nots" in armored strength, were leaning heavily on air action.

After daylight attacks described as "repeated and successful" on the enemy's transport concentrations, RAF bombers delivered a heavy raid last night on the base of the Axis air force which is covering Rommel's army—the landing ground at coastal Ain El Gazala, once the northern anchor of the British forward line in Cirenaica.

British torpedo planes also ranged the Central Mediterranean, hitting two Axis supply ships and a destroyer off Cape Spartivento, southern tip of Italy.

Need Submarines
(In London, however, it was acknowledged that the Axis sea lanes between Italy and Africa could be effectively attacked only with "large numbers of submarines.")

Officially, the British general headquarters had no more to say about the flaming disaster which overwhelmed Tobruk last Saturday and Sunday, but it was learned in Cairo that the general in command (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Japanese Execute Eight Persons in The Philippines

SAN FRANCISCO, June 24 (AP)—Eight persons found guilty of punting and distributing anti-Japanese booklets have been executed in the Philippines, the Japanese-controlled Manila radio said today.

The broadcast, heard by the CBS listening station, said the eight were convicted at a courtmartial June 22. "Three others, found similarly guilty of violation of military laws have been sentenced to long-term imprisonment," the broadcast said.

The radio warned that "other violations of this nature will be severely punished without mercy by the Japanese military authorities."

REVISION OF JUDGES' PENSION PLAN URGED BY BAR COMMITTEE

Policy Termed Detrimental to Maintenance of Judiciary

BALTIMORE, June 24 (AP)—The Committee on Laws of the State Bar Association recommended today changes in the judges' pension plan and asked the association to endorse the elimination of non-essential government spending, curbs on excessive war wages and profits and coupling of a tax program and price control to produce adequate revenue and to control the cost of living.

The committee's report was released here on the eve of the association's forty-seventh annual meeting, June 25-27 in Atlantic City, N. J. C. Elbert Marshall is chairman.

The chairman did not join in the committee's report on judges' pensions and Clarence W. Miles did not concur with the committee findings.

The committee said in its opinion the states pension policy for judges was "unfair to the great majority of its judges and is detrimental to the best interests of the state in the maintenance of a well-qualified judiciary."

It termed the pensions inadequate, "uncertain and lacking in due consideration for length of service in comparison with over-consideration for short service."

Definite Stand Asked
The committee asked the association to take a definite stand quickly, "by announcing in unequivocal terms what the (pension) yardstick should be. If it does not, it is the feeling of this committee that the question of adequate pensions for judges and fair treatment for years (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

NAZIS IGNORE COST AS REDS FALL BACK

German Army Drives Wedge in at Least One Soviet Sector in Battle for Sevastopol, Kharkov

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Thursday, June 25 (AP)—The German command, with prodigious disregard of men and using tanks by the many hundreds, pressed its attacks against Russian legions along the highly strategic Kharkov front all day Wednesday for the third consecutive day, the Russians announced early today, driving a wedge in at least one Soviet sector.

The Nazis at the same time maintained furious pressure against shell-torn fortifications of Sevastopol. Here again equally scornful of heavy losses, pouring overwhelming numbers of men against strong defenses. These attacks were repulsed by the Crimean defenders, it was announced.

Inflated Great Losses

On the Kharkov front, where a heavy German attack opened Monday and forced the Russians to fall back on Tuesday, the Soviet defenders inflicted great losses in men and material on the invaders, the Soviet midnight communique stated.

Despite this valiant defense, however, the Germans persisted in their attack, hurling hordes of infantrymen into the battle with the support of vast numbers of tanks.

A communique earlier in the day disclosed that the Nazis had succeeded in driving a wedge into the Soviet lines east of Kharkov, following up their advantage after their withdrawal of the day before.

The midnight communique reported that Soviet warships operating in the Barents sea in the Far North sank an enemy transport of 4,000 tons.

The whole Russian picture from the Southern front indicated that the Nazi command had determined to pour lavishly the blood of shock troops and reserves to advance along the grimly-blocked approaches to the Caucasus and its oil resources.

In a single narrow salient of the Kharkov front, the Germans were said to have led off an infantry attack with a charge of 200 tanks. In one attack against the bastions of Sevastopol two infantry divisions (up to 30,000 men) were reported hurried forward over fields already heaped with dead.

Charges Cost Thousands

Each new charge was costing the Germans additional thousands of dead alone, Izvestia declared. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

Total taxes—$139,400.

Congressional Leaders Called To White House War Conference

Churchill, Who May Be Questioned on Second Front, Will Also Meet With Pacific Council

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—President Roosevelt has called congressional leaders to the White House tomorrow for a conference with Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain which some legislators predicted would be resolved into a searching review of the war situation.

With the prime minister scheduled also to meet during the day with the Pacific War Council, there were indications that his conferences with President Roosevelt were nearing a point at which some announcement of accomplishments might be made.

An inkling of the tenor of these conversations may be given to the congressional group, expected to include Vice President Wallace, Speaker Rayburn, the majority and minority leaders of both houses and the chairmen of the foreign relations committees.

Canadian Minister To Attend

There were reports also that some members of the congressional group desired to question Mr. Churchill, if the opportunity arose, about the part Britain expects to play and the amount of American aid which would be needed in the establishment of any second front the United Nations may attempt to set up.

Prime Minister MacKenzie King of Canada will be among those attending the Pacific council meeting, the White House announced. He will stay over for additional conferences as well and observers thought he might discuss the Aleutian situation with the president, since that is a matter in which both the United States and Canada are vitally interested.

There was speculation that Churchill might address the council, giving it his views on the conduct of the war on all fronts, as affected by his current second series of personal negotiations with Mr. Roosevelt.

Council Met Last Week

Following that, it was believed, he might receive from the Australian, New Zealand, Chinese, Philippine and Dutch representatives suggestions as to how that over-all strategy might be affected by local problems.

The council met a week ago and at that time received reports of the American triumph in the battle of Midway. It discussed, too, the Japanese landings in the Aleutians.

Since then, Canadian troops and airmen have been sent to Alaska to augment United States forces there. Other developments in the meantime have included the shelling of American and Canadian West Coast territory by a Japanese submarine, and intensive fighting in China, with the Chinese today reporting considerable local successes.

The council was to have met today, but the session was postponed to give Premier MacKenzie King time to reach Washington.

Reports of Sub Base On Brazilian Coast Being Investigated

RIO DE JANEIRO, June 24 (AP)—A high source said tonight that naval and aviation forces are investigating reports that an Axis submarine base is located on the coast of the Brazilian State of Maranhao.

It has not been possible to determine immediately whether submarines are operating from the base, this source said, but various reports recently are declared to have indicated the possibility that Axis raiders are hiding in the muddy waters of a river mouth along the swampy shoreline, and refueling there.

JOHNSTON PLAYED HEROIC PART DURING CARRIER'S FINAL HOURS

Newsman Risked Life To Rescue Seamen, Squadron Leader Says

LOS ANGELES, June 24 (AP)—Nevanham Stanley Johnston did a fine job of reporting the battle of the Coral sea, says one of his shipmates aboard the U.S.S. Lexington, but neglected to tell the heroic part he himself played in the final hours of the big aircraft carrier.

Lt. Comdr. Weldon O. Hamilton, squadron leader who first sighted the Japanese Carrier Ryukaku and planted the first heavy bomb in the middle of its broad flight deck, reported today that Johnston, Chicago Tribune correspondent and only reporter aboard was one of the real heroes of the Lexington.

Showdown Near On Argentina's Axis Attitude

"Prudently Neutral" Acting President Aroused over Ship Sinking

By CHARLES H. GUPTILL

BUENOS AIRES, June 24 (AP)—The stormy battle over the Argentine government's policy of "prudent neutrality" was intensified sharply tonight when the Chamber of Deputies adopted a resolution asking Foreign Minister Enrique Ruiz Guinazu whether the time had not come to rupture relations with the Axis.

The chamber, which has consistently opposed the government's foreign policy, called the foreign minister to appear before it soon after the government announced it was protesting hotly to Germany against the sinking of the Argentine freighter Rio Tercero.

At the same time President Roberto H. Ortiz, supporter of President Roosevelt's policies but inactive for nearly two years because of near-blindness, formally submitted his anticipated resignation, placing full responsibility for Argentina's administration upon Acting President Ramon S. Castillo, exponent of a policy of "prudent neutrality" and of dealing with the Axis.

Late tonight the government announced it had sent to Berlin its protest over the Rio Tercero sinking. Foreign Minister Enrique Ruiz Guinazu declined to make public the text, but Castillo earlier had said it would be "categorical and energetic."

To Call Foreign Minister

The chamber voted overwhelmingly to call the foreign minister to appear July 2 to give complete information on the torpedoing of the Rio Tercero and to state "whether or not in the face of this latest aggression by the Axis against our (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—A new tax bill designed to yield $5,924,000,000 additional revenue was completed by the House Ways and Means committee today with most of the administration's major recommendations crumpled in the waste-basket.

The treasury had asked for $8,700,000,000—to help finance the war and to combat inflation by reducing the public's spending money. In fact, President Roosevelt had suggested definite limitations through taxes on the income of individuals and corporations.

As the committee completed the study it began March 3, it reversed a previous stand and defeated still another recommendation of Secretary Morgenthau—that married persons be required to file joint income tax returns.

Sales Tax Omitted

Federal taxes other than those imposed by the new bill are expected by the treasury to yield $16,500,000,000 for the next fiscal year. On top of this $22,424,000,000 total, the taxpayers would be assessed another $2,000,000,000 in increased social security levies if administration recommendations are adopted.

Although the bill was about $2,800,000,000 short of the treasury's goal, the measure did not impose a general sales tax, advocated by many committee members but opposed by the president and Morgenthau on the ground that it would fall disproportionately on low-income groups.

Morgenthau told the committee that even if it raised as much as $7,000,000,000 in new revenue and another $2,000,000,000 in social security taxes—as the president recommended—it would be necessary to borrow at least $39,000,000,000 in the fiscal year which begins July 1. Appropriations approved by Congress are approaching the $90,000,000,000 mark thus far this year.

While the committee's decisions are subject to review later when the hundreds of pages of technical language are finally prepared, it was expected that the House might pass the bill and send it to the Senate by July 20. There was a cloakroom conversation on the possibility that the Senate might accept the House bill speedily, with few changes, with the prospect that supplemental legislation might be considered in the fall.

The committee built its bill around drastically-increased individual and corporation levies.

Lowers Personal Exemption

It lowered personal exemptions for individuals from $1,500 to $1,200 in the case of a married man, raised the normal tax from four to six per cent and boosted the lowest surtax rate from six to twelve per cent. To help collect this estimated $2,730,000,000 increase in income taxes (Continued on Page 2, Col. 8)

Rubber Collections In East and South Are Disappointing

Nevada Is First in List of States Based on Pounds per Capita

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—More than 200 million pounds of scrap rubber has been turned in to gasoline filling stations in the first six days of the nationwide collection campaign, the Petroleum Industry War Council told President Roosevelt today.

William R. Boyd, Jr., council chairman, described the results as "encouraging," but Secretary of Interior Ickes viewed as "very disappointing" the response of Eastern and Southern states.

"This is putting it up to the people to determine whether they want to run their cars or not, by turning in rubber," Ickes told reporters.

"If it is not turned in—enough to take care of military needs and to some extent civilian needs—we'll have to get the rubber some way," Boyd and Ickes visited the White House together to report to the president.

The 200,881,000 pounds reported by the council represented 1.52 pounds per capita, or the equivalent of 106,438 tons. Boyd said these figures did not include rubber held by some 17,000 local junk dealers, about 3,000 carload lot dealers and reclaiming plants.

The council head disclosed that Nevada was first in the list of states based on the number of pounds collected per capita, followed by Montana, Oregon and Arizona, in that order. Pennsylvania, he added (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

Shaughnessy Is Cleared of Blame In Scuffle

H. A. Russell Tells Police He Is Motorist Who Struck Officer

BALTIMORE, June 24 (AP)—Herbert Albert Russell, an engineer at the University of Maryland, appeared at the Towson police station today and identified himself as the driver sought by police after a scuffle with Baltimore County Police Officer William G. Hill.

Russell was summoned to a magistrate's hearing tomorrow at Woodlawn.

Hill told Police Chief Oscar Grimes that the motorist, whom he did not identify, struck him twice and bit him on the finger after Hill stopped him for going through a boulevard stop sign shortly after noon Sunday.

Took Down License Number

He took down the license number and reported it was registered in the name of Clark D. Shaughnessy, University of Maryland athletic director.

Magistrate John Mahle of Woodlawn then issued a warrant for the arrest of Shaughnessy, who flew to the West Coast Sunday. Hill today saw a picture of the athletic coach and declared that Shaughnessy had not been the operator of the machine.

Hill said the motorist had called him "an impolite name" when he first saw the car at an intersection. Dressed in plain clothes, Hill followed the machine and stopped it when it went through the stop sign intersection.

The officer told Grimes the man struck him then before he could display his badge. A soldier riding in the car gave Hill first aid for his finger before rejoining the driver.

Russell, in a formal statement issued today, said he used Shaughnessy's car, which had been left in his care, for a trip to Pikesville, Md., after noticing one of the tires on his own car was flat. Shaughnessy already had been taken to the Washington airport.

He said that near Woodlawn "a car going west on Windsor road passed close in front of me, causing me to swear at the car. Thinking nothing more of the incident, I proceeded on my way and on Liberty road x x x was forced to the side of the road by the same car, x x x.

"The man in the other car, who was wearing civilian clothes, walked up to me and said he was a policeman. I asked for some identification and he showed me his picture and an American Red Cross card.

Start To Scuffle

"Some words were passed and I suggested that we both go to the state police barracks at Randallstown. x x x We started to scuffle and in the scuffle the man's hand brushed rather violently across my face. I was chewing at the time and the man hollered that I had bit his finger. We separated and I found that this was true.

"So I immediately asked the passenger in my car to bandage the injured finger, which he did with a handkerchief."

Explaining that he showed his driver's license and that the man got back in his car, Russell said that "I felt that the incident was closed, in view of the fact that I had suggested that we go to the police station and the suggestion was declined."

"At no time during the entire altercation was Mr. Shaughnessy's name mentioned by anyone. x x x Personally I regret very much my own part in the incident and herewith wish to express my public apology for same."

APPEAL BY PUBLISHER OF PM POSTPONES EDITOR'S INDUCTION

NEW YORK, June 24 (AP)—An appeal by Marshall Field, publisher of the newspaper PM, postponed today for at least two weeks the induction of the paper's 41-year-old editor, Ralph M. Ingersoll.

Ingersoll, who appeared at his local draft board at 5:45 a. m. (EWT) to leave with others for a final physical examination at Fort Jay, Governors Island, said he was unaware of the appeal.

Walter Mallory, local draft board chairman, said Field had telegraphed the local board and Selective Service headquarters in Washington late yesterday describing the editor as "indispensable" to the management of PM and asserting Ingersoll was more valuable to the nation's war effort as a newspaper editor than as a soldier.

Field said in Chicago that "there is a case where one must consider whether a newspaper is valuable in wartime. If it is, then Mr. Ingersoll is very valuable, indeed, to PM because it is a personalized paper and his leadership is very badly needed in its publication."

Field said he believed the editor's draft status "should go further than the local draft board, but whatever the result of the appeal, it will, of course, be accepted."

Tax Claims Against Chesapeake Firm Are Settled

Receivership Assets Amount to $8,612,476.88

BALTIMORE, June 24 (AP)—An order filed in circuit court today disclosed settlement of federal tax claims against the Chesapeake Corporation receivership for $1,300,000, leaving large assets of the former Van Swearingen Holding Company for distribution to stockholders.

Judge Rowland K. Adams signed the documents sanctioning the tax settlement upon request of E. Asbury Davis, receiver of the Chesapeake Corporation, which was placed in receivership in 1939 by action of a group of former directors acting as trustees in a voluntary dissolution.

Includes Cash

The receivership assets, papers disclosed, amounted to $8,612,476.88 and include $2,535,646.88 in cash, 199,786 shares of Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad stock valued at nearly $6,000,000, and 18,500 shares of Pere Marquette Railway stock valued at more than $83,000.

Davis said the government had pressed a tax claim of $8,693,700.08 based on alleged liability for 1936, 1937 and 1938 of $6,712,469.84 plus interest, and told the court the $1,300,000 settlement was advisable.

The claims represented income and excess profits taxes for the three years, arising mainly from conflicts over tax liability on certain C and O Railroad dividends declared late in 1936, payable in 1937.

To Be Distributed Soon

Davis said that after this settlement only minor current taxation, winding up of the receivership and payment of receivership expenses remained, and that distribution of the railroad stock held by the receiver would be made as soon as possible.

Allegheny Corporation, another holding company, holds approximately seventy per cent of $1,799,745 shares of outstanding Chesapeake Corporation stock.

Married Men

have financial dependents other than wives or children mentioned in categories 3 or 4.

Provide Induction Order

"Category 3. Registrants otherwise qualified for military service who have wives with whom they are maintaining a bona fide family relationship in their homes and who were married prior to Dec. 8, 1941, and at a time when induction was not imminent."

"Category 4. Registrants otherwise qualified for military service who have wives and children, or children alone, with whom they maintain a bona fide family relationship in their homes who were married prior to Dec. 8, 1941, at a time when induction was not imminent."

After setting forth these classifications the Selective Service system added that it wished to make it "emphatic that they do not provide for the permanent deferment of men with dependents but rather provide the order in which the registrants with dependents will be inducted."

Moreover, it appeared that in some cases married men might still be called ahead of others, if such action were necessary to fill draft calls on time. The announcement emphasized that "the national interest requires that all calls to meet the manpower requirements of the armed forces be filled on schedule, but that insofar as was practical in meeting these calls, the category system should be followed."

Thus, it seemed possible that in cases where a draft board is already on the point of sending married men up for induction and cannot substitute single men quickly, the married men may have to serve.

"Local boards will continue to review the facts in the case of each individual," the announcement said. "In the selection of registrants for induction from any of the four categories the full facts in each individual case shall be considered, and the local board, subject to the usual appeals, must judge whether or not there are sufficient unusual circumstances to justify a departure from the general rule of priority of induction."

State Directors Notified

In addition to issuing this statement the draft headquarters dispatched a telegram to state directors saying:

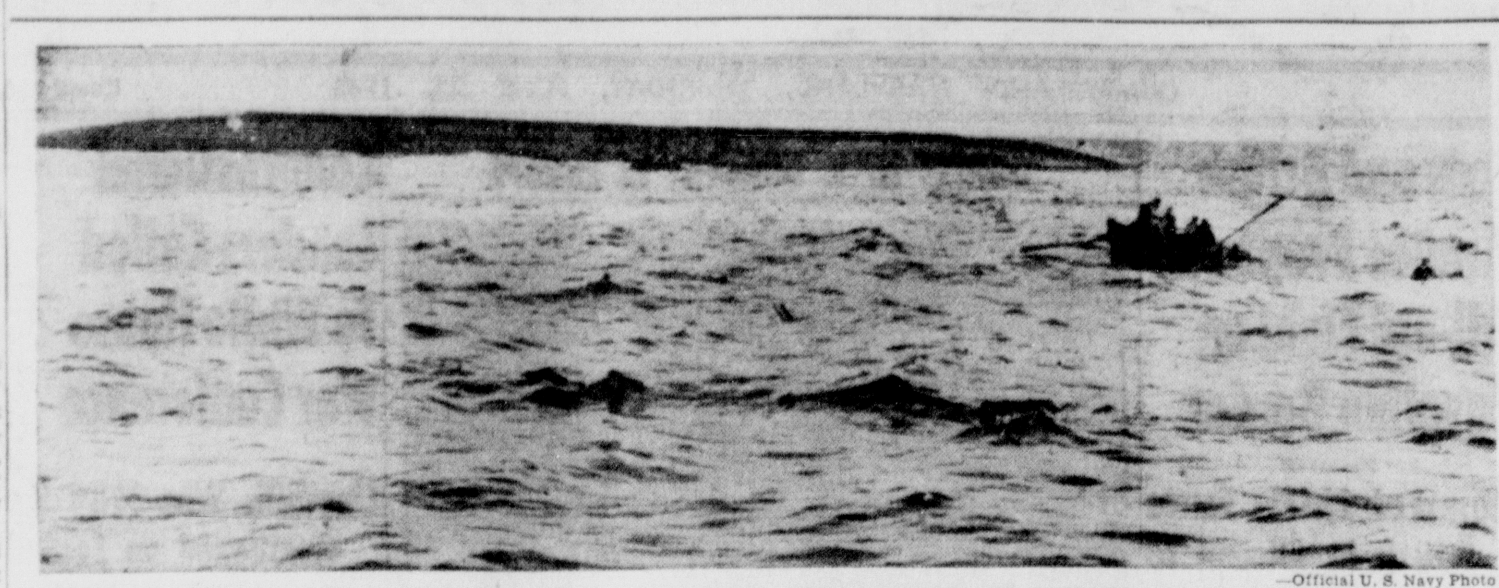

"It is the expressed intent of Congress that registrants who are otherwise qualified for military service be divided into categories on the basis of family relations and dependents, and that the registrants in the several categories be arranged in the order in which it is advisable to select them for induction, and that all the registrants in each category be selected for induction before any registrants in the succeeding category is elected for induction."

In addition the national headquarters made it clear that the establishment of these categories had no effect upon occupational classifications.

New York X-Card Holders' Names Are Read Aloud

Idea Cooked Up by OPA To Save $600 Means Boredom for Reporters

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK, June 24 (AP)—The gasoline rationing X-card, soon to be extinct by Office of Price Administration order but still possessed by some 70,000 New Yorkers, began a final fling in regional OPA headquarters here today.

Hoisted and booted about, both desired and damned, the X-card signifies "X-erminating" boredom for several Office of Civilian Defense volunteer workers and a dozen New York newspaper reporters in the last days of its harassed existence.

Regional OPA Idea

It's the result of an idea cooked up by regional OPA officials here who must follow out the government order that the names of X-card holders be made public.

To type out the lists of names would have cost between $600 and $700, OPA officials said. So they called in a few office workers, a relief corps of volunteers and the reporters—who will argue with you whether the OPA has a clever idea.

At 9:30 o'clock this morning, the workers began reading the list of names of those possessing the once-treasured cards. They began with the A's in the borough of Manhattan, setting a fast pace of about 1,000 names per hour.

The reporters smoked, yawned, looked at the ceiling and occasionally took down the name of someone who sounded interesting.

Pace Speeded Up

Toward noon a reporter figured out that he would be sitting there for nearly ten days if the names continued to be read at the rate of 1,000 an hour, eight hours a day. So the pace was speeded up.

By 4:30 o'clock an optimist figured that approximately 12,000 names would have been read aloud by quitting time at 5 o'clock. But the readers were still in the T's of Manhattan, and the boroughs of Brooklyn, the Bronx, Queens and Richmond had still to be heard from.

Estimates on how long it will take to read the whole list vary. It seems to be a matter of how long the reporters are willing to sit there.

sailor. He risked his life time and again."

When orders came to abandon ship, the flight command was told to go aboard a nearby destroyer, along with the wounded. The rest of the crew was to go overseas later.

Swims to Destroyer

"Johnston asked what he was supposed to do," Hamilton chuckled. "I told him to cable his editor for instructions."

What Johnston actually did, Hamilton said, was to go overseas with the last remaining seamen, and swim to the destroyer through an oil-coated, choppy sea.

Hamilton, leading one of four squadrons in the attack on the Ryukaku, was first to sight the 23,000-ton carrier. He planned a heavy bomb on its flight deck. Torpedo planes attacked at the same time, and the carrier soon sank.

Commander Hamilton, a San Diego resident, was born in Burlington, S. C., and was graduated from Annapolis in 1928. He is resting briefly while awaiting his new assignment.

Wholesale destruction of British transport made it impossible for a large force to do so, however, and the general decided to fight on within the perimeter until he had completed demolition of Tobruk's supply dumps.

The vast explosions and columns of smoke observed far at sea showed he did his best.

Hitler apparently has ordered his army commanders in Southern Russia and North Africa to get on at once with their bloody jobs, regardless of losses or risks.

Time is the one thing he dare not lose. His grandiose concept of smashing eastward against Russian and British forces simultaneously demands instant action.

Russian reports of the rising fury of German attacks led by massed tanks south of Kharkov made that appear for the moment the most crucial phase of the vast battle. The Nazi assault there has admittedly dented Russian lines, how deeply is unexplained.

Outcome Still in Doubt

There is no indication, however, that a blitzkrieg breakthrough has been effected to split or roll up Marshal Timoshenko's army—an army that menaces that flank of any German attempt to sweep to the Don and around the Rostov corner.

And while the Russian front from Kharkov to the Sea of Azov remains intact, even if forced back here or there, and the outnumbered and perhaps doomed Russian defense of Sevastopol fight on under their "victory-or-death" slogan, the full force of German might cannot be loosed against the Caucasus or against Egypt. Stunned as was the loss of Tobruk, terrific as the pressure is in Russia, the outcome still is in the balance—and with it probably Hitler's fate.

Cairo and London are still too engrossed with a post mortem analysis of the Tobruk defeat to furnish a very clear picture of subsequent happenings. It seems clear, however, that British defense lines are bracing along the Egyptian border for an expected onslaught by General Rommel.

Cairo reports that Rommel's victory—flushed but unquestionably battle-worn forces are already bombarding the coastal fortifications on the Egyptian border, and rushing southward for a wide turning movement.

Rommel's Next Move Watched

Until the scope and nature of Rommel's next move is more clearly defined, it must remain uncertain just where the British propose to make their stand. Much will depend also on the degree of Axis fatigue that is detected in preliminary skirmishes as the battle lines take shape.

The reinforced British Eighth Army has the tremendous advantage of shorter and better communication lines. It is in a position to pick its own ground for a decisive test.

Rommel must be even less well prepared for it than his foes due to wear and tear on his men and machines. It's a reasonable deduction that if Hitler forces him to attack at once, he will be gambling all on British disorganization and lost morale rather than his own proven military judgment.

Discussing the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, the committee said it had decided not to recommend new legislation. It said it was of great importance in habeas corpus proceedings that the procedure "in connection with this valuable personal privilege be kept simple and fully effectual."

Man and Wife Are Charged with Disorder

Charges of disorderly conduct were entered against Mr. and Mrs. James Healey, Grand avenue, by Officer Thomas J. See at 12:20 o'clock this morning after a disturbance in an alley next to the Clark-Keating building on Baltimore street.

Police said the woman told them her husband was choking her. Both are held in the city jail for a hearing in police court this morning.

of service may be foreclosed for judges for years to come."

The first step in the accomplishment of the pension plan, the committee argued, was the repeal or amendment of Chapter 390 of the Acts of 1941, "thereby eliminating the clear injustices brought about by that piece of ill-conceived and hasty legislation."

The committee expressed its opposition to consideration of special problems affecting the pensions, contending that such special considerations in the past "resulted in the makeshift pension acts which have been enacted." It opposed any piecemeal legislation.

After recommending approval of the Hobbs act which would make a union or union member subject to the provisions of the federal anti-racketeering law, the committee said it doubted the advisability of other remedial labor legislation at this time.

It approved the six-point program of the American Bar Association which urged strike legislation, draft-drafting of strikers, freezing of open and closed shop status and other labor laws.

The Maryland committee said increased co-operation between labor and industry since May prompted their doubt as to the advisability of legislation now.

Strike legislation, the members contended, "could possibly have a diametrically opposite effect and slow down the war effort and reduce the war production."

"Go Ahead Fool I Bailing Out" And He Did

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—This story was going the rounds in naval circles today:

When the navy attacked Wake Island on February 24, one of the American fliers was a Japanese language student, and overheard a conversation between the pilots of two Japanese bombers which had been damaged and were going into crash falls.

The first pilot said: "I'm now going to crash into the sea in honor of Emperor."

The second pilot's reply, freely translated: "Go ahead, fool, me I am bailing out."

In support of the six-point program," the report said.

But, the committee said, it "should hesitate to recommend the present enactment of any legislation predicated upon the six-point program, however basically sound the proposal may be, if in effect the enactment could slow down the war effort and decrease essential output."

The committee in its summing up of the labor legislation subject, said: "This committee urges that this association place itself on record as strongly endorsing the elimination of non-essential governmental activities and expenditures."

"Also the curbing of excessive wages or profits brought about by the war emergency, and the formulation of a tax program which will not only tend to prevent distressing increase in the cost of living but produce adequate revenue to complete the financing of the war effort."

It earlier had expressed its belief "that general wage increases be curbed x x x whether through legislation, if found necessary or by other administrative methods under consideration which required testing as to their efficacy."

2—Punishment of Nazi leaders and traitors within France, and destruction of the totalitarian system as well as the overthrow of the systematic coalition of private interests which opposed the national interests of France.

3—Establishment of guarantees "to put an end to tyranny constituted by perpetual infringement of rights and to ensure liberty and dignity in the working life of every citizen."

4—Destruction of the "mechanical organization of mankind such as the enemy achieved in contempt of all religion, morals and charity," and the restoration of the old French ideal of liberty, equality and fraternity.

The declaration was made, Free French leaders said, after revisions were made by underground leaders in France including trade unionists, Catholics, Socialists and individual leaders.

The declaration was published in underground newspapers throughout occupied France as early as June 15, but was withheld in England to assure the widest possible circulation on the continent.

GERMAN PLANES ATTACK ENGLAND FOR FIRST TIME IN MORE THAN YEAR

LONDON, Thursday, June 25 (AP)—German planes striking at the industrial Midlands section of England for the first time in more than a year caused casualties and damage early today and later a lone plane touched off London's anti-aircraft guns for ten minutes.

The extent of the damage in the Midlands was not disclosed early this morning.

The British capital has gone for months since the heavy raids of last year, with few air raid alarms. The last alarm sounded in London June 3 when a single German raider approached the city before veering away.

Raiders dropped bombs on two areas of a Midlands town early this morning, and it was believed the plane sighted over London might be either one of these raiders off its course or a reconnaissance plane.

If the latter was true, it might mean that Germany is considering resumption of raids on the capital.

Although drug stores have not been so seriously affected," he told 750 pharmacists from all sections of the state, "we are constantly reminded that there will be acute and serious shortage of many of the products that have been handled."

Serious Shortages Of Drugs Predicted

BALTIMORE, June 24 (AP)—Acute and serious shortages in many drug products are in prospect, T. Ellisworth Ragland said today, but the retail drug store will "carry on" as professional health service so far as necessary drugs, medicines and medical supplies are concerned.

Ragland, retiring president of the Maryland Pharmaceutical Association, said that among the effects of the war has been the withdrawal almost entirely of quinine from general civilian stocks.

"Although drug stores have not been so seriously affected," he told 750 pharmacists from all sections of the state, "we are constantly reminded that there will be acute and serious shortage of many of the products that have been handled."

Declaring he would not object to the fairs being stopped "when they get ready to shut down the race tracks, big league baseball and circuses," Senator Reed (R-Kas) contended there was no economy in rubber so long as these other attractions were permitted to continue.

Marylanders Are Reminded of Ban On All Fireworks

State Insurance Commissioner Requests State-Wide Co-operation

BALTIMORE, June 24 (AP)—State Insurance Commissioner John B. Gontum, asking state-wide co-operation with the fireworks ban, reminded Marylanders today the law also prohibited the use of sparklers.

"It will be noticed," Gontum said in a pre-July Fourth statement, "that sparklers, which were permitted under the court's order last year, are barred under the present law. No section of the state is exempt from the operation of the law."

He said he wished to call the fireworks law "to the attention of the county commissioners, police departments and sheriffs of the state upon whom rests, to a large extent, the enforcement of the law."

The act now in effect, he continued, was "more stringent than the rules and regulations issued by the insurance commissioner last year as modified by the Circuit Court of Baltimore city."

"Under the law now in effect the term 'fireworks' means fireworks of every description defined as follows: Firecrackers, squibs, rockets, sparklers, Roman candles, torpedoes, bombs, grenades, fire-balloons, signal lights and any combustible or explosive composition."

He said a number of requests for fireworks display permits had come to the insurance commissioner. Saying he had no discretion to waive "the clear terms of the law" he said permits for public display would be granted only after full investigation by his staff.

Budget Request Of OPA Reduced More Than Half

Appropriations Committee Recommends $95,000,000 for Agency

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—Price Administrator Leon Henderson's proposed budget was more than halved today by a House Appropriations sub-committee which recommended $95,000,000 for the agency instead of the $200,000,000 he requested originally.

There was no comment from Henderson on the sub-committee action, although he indicated recently that he believed Congress was holding up the requested OPA appropriation because of dissatisfaction with his appointees. He has declared OPA employees were being chosen without regard to politics.

Contemplated 90,000 Workers

Henderson's original recommendation contemplated a working force of approximately 90,000 employees. The budget bureau slashed his appropriation figure $66,000,000—leaving enough to take care of about 65,000 employees—and the sub-committee's action was believed by members to have reduced that number to some 30,000.

The sub-committee's figures were announced by Chairman Cannon (D-Mo.). While they are subject to approval of the entire appropriations committee, a sub-committee's recommendations are normally accepted.

Cannon did not disclose details of the reductions, but other members said that it was agreed generally that OPA could operate more economically and did not need 90,000 employees. Also removed from the measure was a provision for employment of what committeemen referred to as "snoopers" to help enforce price ceiling and rationing regulations. Members said they were unnecessary.

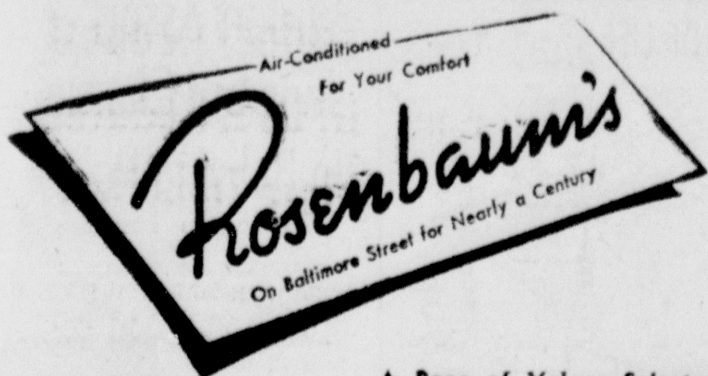

Target of Criticism

Henderson, whose office now has wide control over civilian economy, has recently been the target of sharp congressional criticism.

The appropriation which the sub-committee whittled down today would cover the fiscal year starting July 1, and would include all phases of OPA activity, including the administration of subsidies to help prices at their present "frozen levels."

THE PRESSING OF SILK depends upon the type of silk it is. Washable silks, satins and crepes may be ironed while slightly damp; be sure to shape the fabric carefully to size just before ironing. Rajahs, honans, shantung and pongees should be ironed dry; otherwise they may appear spotted. Silk is often scorched when the iron is too hot. (Too hot an iron sometimes causes color changes too.) So—use a moderately warm, not a hot iron. It is seldom that a press cloth is necessary. But it is better to iron silk on the under side to make doubly sure you don't get scorch and ironing marks on the face of the fabric.

The Growing Menace Of Bureaucracy

THE INDIANA REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION put its finger on what the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer declares will be a real issue in the forthcoming congressional elections when it wrote a plank in its party platform concerning the menace of bureaucracy.

"The Republican party," the plank reads, "warns the people that unless bureaucracy and bureaucratic control are reduced to their true functions, labor, business and the farmer will be regimented out of the American way of life that has made this country the greatest nation on the face of the globe."

How true that is, the Intelligencer explains. "Prior to the outbreak of the war," it says, "there were indications of a public awakening to the consequences of unchecked bureaucratic growth at Washington. More and more people were beginning to realize that the New Deal is essentially a collective concept; that government invasion of various fields of private enterprise, government dictation of business practices, government control of wages and hours of labor and working conditions, government 'investment' in the realm of enterprise, government employment on a vast scale led inevitably to some form of state socialism."

"The war, quite naturally, relegated such considerations to a place of secondary importance. Winning of the war became the great, immediate task before the American people. And the New Deal political managers were quick to take advantage of this situation. Although the war is not and cannot be an issue in this campaign, although there is now and has been since the country was attacked complete American unity on the proposition that the war must be won in the shortest possible period of time, the administration has attempted to make support of the president's foreign policy before Pearl Harbor a test of fitness for a seat in Congress.

"Unfortunately, the war has not only served to belud the one legitimate issue in this campaign, but has accentuated the danger inherent in the New Deal. The exigencies of war have made necessary extensions of government control impossible of attainment in peacetime. They have justified, or at least made possible, tremendous expansion of an already top-heavy bureaucracy.

"In the hands of an ordinary American administration, this extension of power would cause little apprehension. In the hands of an administration that has shown an inordinate appetite for power, a definite hostility to the traditional system of free enterprise and personal independence, it has become dangerous in the extreme. What reason have we for believing that a government which so extended its authority in peacetime will readily relinquish unusual power thrust into its hands by the demands of war?

"Recovery by the people of the power surrendered during the recent past can be assured only by a change in the political complexion of the government. That can be expected only by substituting for some of the yes-men of Washington independent, courageous spirits who believe in the American system and will vote that way in the halls of Congress."

Absolutely. The warning issued by the Indiana Republicans is timely and must be heeded. The reasons set forth by the Intelligencer are made all the more impressive by the fact that the administration has proved beyond peradventure of doubt its extreme reluctance, if not an outright obstinate refusal, to yield any bureaucratic privileges and perquisites through a reduction of the many non-essentials recommended by various experts that would cut down the cost of governmental operation by some two billions a year.

Custer's Last Stand Has Anniversary Today

SIXTY-SIX YEARS have passed since Lieut. Col. George A. Custer, twelve officers and 193 soldiers and scouts of the Seventh cavalry were annihilated in an attack on a large camp of Sioux Indians led by Crazy Horse and Sitting Bull on the Little Big Horn river in Montana. That was on June 25, 1876.

Custer's last fight was the beginning of the end of the Indian wars. When the Sioux wiped out Custer and part of the Seventh they set in motion forces which they dared not oppose. The dramatic end of the intrepid Indian fighter and Civil war hero—he was a general in that struggle at the age of twenty-two — and his command, which included three of his brothers and a brother-in-law, enshrined the name of Custer in eternal glory.

The name of Custer appears on the map of the United States oftener than that of any other man, not excepting Washington. The plains country is replete with Custer forests, creeks, counties and towns. Custer is buried at West Point.

Maj. Marcus A. Reno, second in command of the Seventh cavalry in that fight, and who fought the Sioux for two days with a loss of fifty killed and forty-six wounded, has never received the recognition many students of history feel was due him for his successful defense. Maj. Reno died in 1889 and is buried in a civilian cemetery at Harrisburg, Pa.

It is doubtful if a single person, white or Indian, who took part in the fighting on the Little Big Horn survives. Col. Charles A. Varnum, a second lieutenant with Reno who was wounded, died three years ago and was the last of the surviving officers. Custer's widow died in New York city several years ago at the age of 94.

American History In the Colleges

A SURVEY published in the New York Times reveals that the colleges and universities of this country have been sighting the study of United States history.

The survey shows that eighty-two percent of the schools of higher education do not require this study and that seventy-two percent of them do not require it as a prerequisite of admission and this, as the Times observes, is somewhat disconcerting.

Even in normal times this would represent a serious gap in our educational system, but it appears more so now when American institutions are threatened and there is need for a clearer understanding and appreciation of the American way of life. It is needful to point out that a basic knowledge of American history would enhance that understanding and appreciation.

The indictment, of course, is leveled somewhat by the fact that college students do get some study of American history in political science subjects. But that comes only as part of a much larger picture, and cannot possibly leave the impression that a specific study would leave.

That something should be done to supply this deficiency is to be noted by any radio fan who listens to the popular quiz programs and finds an amazing ignorance of the basic facts of American history on the part of eager contestants. The lack of this knowledge disclosed there should be as disconcerting as, alas, many an editor finds it to be with respect to the rudiments of grammar, wherein he wonders whether that subject, too, has been neglected in the schooling system.

Japan and Alaska

THE FOG usually present where warm water meets cold water has veiled operations in the Aleutians. But it has not veiled the purpose and intent of the Japanese. By striking at Attu, Kiska and Dutch Harbor they were obviously trying to capture the most western of this country's off-Alaska bases, and thus make more difficult the air supply route to China and Russia.

Moreover, establishment of a new outer ring, from the Berin sea southward past Midway to Australia, would better protect Japanese development of lands occupied last winter as well as set things up for a major attack on Alaska, Canada, Hawaii or Australia.

The Japs have appreciated the value of the Aleutians and Alaska ever since they emerged into world power status. Thousands of their fishing boats have chartered the waters and atmospheric conditions thereabouts with the same thoroughness that they prepared for Pearl Harbor.

American navy chiefs in the Pacific believe that when the weather is favorable the Japanese will blunder once again by attempting a thrust toward America and then meeting a superior resistance.

Automobile traffic is declining, making more room for the minority that still thinks seventy miles an hour a rather moderate speed.

That Word "If"

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Watch out for that little word "If." It's like strong drink; it's pretty little poison oak leaves; it's like fruitless day dreaming; it's glamorous temptation.

Do you remember that play, "The Green Pastures"? Did you read the book? Do you remember that scene in De Lawd's office, when he's sitting at his desk, going over his accounts, and behind his back De Angel Gabriel looks at his shiny, miraculous horn, and looks at it again and again, and licks his lips and lifts the horn slowly to his mouth? And just at the instant when Gabriel MIGHT have blown a blast, just a little blast, on the horn of the Last Judgment, De Lawd says sharply, "Watch y'elf, Gabe!"

You watch yourself, too. Keep away from that little word "If." It's dangerous. It'll cause you trouble like Gabriel's horn.

You get to fooling 'round with that little word and the first thing you know you begin to feel sorry for yourself and you say:

"If grandfather had only kept all that land we'd all be rich today. If my other grandfather hadn't wasted all his money in speculation, I wouldn't be worrying about nickels and dimes today. . . . If the market had only stayed up. . . . If I hadn't quit school. . . . If I hadn't been an only child. . . . If I hadn't lived on a ranch. . . . If I'd studied medicine instead of architecture. . . . If my eyesight had been better. . . . If I'd planted potatoes instead of wheat. . . . If my eggs had only hatched. . . . If I hadn't done this, I wouldn't have done that, and I would have followed that road, and I wouldn't have decided as I did, and I would have done something else, and everything would be better than anything is now. . . . If and if and if and if."

And if wishes were horses beggars would ride and if wishes were fishes we'd have some fried. Keep away from the tricky word "If." It leads down a melancholy road. It's rarely cheerful, never quite truthful. You start too many sentences with that little word and you'll be sorry, you'll be sorry. . . . That's a fact with no ifs or buts.

Union Politicos Go Into Action Again, Mallon Reports

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The current flurry of news-items about strikes breaking here and there about the country does not yet constitute a new strike threat to war production, but does betray a new outburst of union politics.

The union politicians apparently are bent on crowding Mr. Roosevelt's War board into great new salary and political concessions.

The new strikes are minor, usually involving a small number of men, they have been running anywhere from three to eight a day since Pearl Harbor and are generally short-lived. It is astonishing that there are any at all at a time like this, but the union leaders seem to be holding their boys in line reasonably well on that front.

But they, themselves, have been building up through simultaneous demands upon employers and the WPB what constitutes a campaign to break the voluntary government wage freezing arrangement upon which the war economy is based.

The United Auto Workers have, for instance, made extreme demands on the Chrysler Corporation for a new contract. These go far beyond the limits of FDR's cost of living yardstick for wages, and probably beyond what the union leaders may expect to get.

The union demanded $1 a day increase for everyone, $1 per hour minimum for all workers, and $150 an hour minimum for maintenance workers on a retroactive basis a long way back, together with other concessions.

Cases Pile Up

Many other cases seeking $1 a day increases are piling up in WPB. The Little Steel cases have been there undecided since February. Also a General Motors case has rested there since April 27. WPB has received in all, around 200 cases and about 125 are still on hand.

Each labor member of negotiating committees is apparently trying to outdo all others in making demands for the men. Their mass demands are thus being dumped into the lap of WPB, which is now piled high with what might be called political labor demands.

No wage pattern has yet been laid down by WPB. Recently it granted ten cents an hour increase (80 cents a day) in the Ryan Aeronautical case, but WPB members indicated this was not to be used as a pattern.

On closed shop, however, it has established a loose policy for various forms of the "union maintenance shop" which is, in practical effect, a closed one. In customary form, it allows members to resign from unions at the start of the contract, but not thereafter, and new employees must join the union.

British Generalship Inferior

The British probably did not intend to hold Tobruk this time. The best troops they had there on surrender day were a brigade of Indians and a division of South Africans, along with anti-aircraft units and supplies men. Apparently they intended to blow up their ammunition and escape on the boats.

The port could not be used as a plane and sea base for defense of Malta with so much German aircraft around, and the cost of a siege this time would have been dear.

But the Germans took them by surprise. The crafty Marshal Rommel changed tactics from the last campaign.

Then he had by-passed Tobruk and pursued the British into Egypt with the main part of his force, coming back later to lay siege. That gave the Tobruk forces time to get ready.

Last Saturday he gave them no time. His dive bombing planes took their small airforce by surprise and he pierced their outer lines and captured the city before they had time to carry out their mission of destroying their ammunition.

It was another case of inferior British generalship in keeping with

URGES CARGO SUBS

Senator Lister Hill

Senator Lister Hill, of Alabama, urges an immediate program to build scores of submarines capable of carrying 7,500 tons of cargo, to transport military supplies to United Nations forces in all parts of the world. He discussed his plan with Simon Lake, inventor of the submarine and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox.

Ship Losses Make a Second Front This Year Questionable, Mark Sullivan Says the rest of the Libyan campaign.

American Tanks Okay

Mud-slinging always follows a lost campaign. Several military interpreters are throwing some at our tanks. They assume that the big Nazi 88 mm guns were in German tanks and that these blasted our "General Grants" out of the desert. If this was true, and our tank is inferior to the Nazis, the implications would be terrific upon our war effort, particularly as to establishing of a second front in Europe, and as to the length of the war (it might take perhaps a year to change our tank and get a new model into action in great quantities).

Fortunately all this is not true and the experts who are making such assertions are inadvertently doing damage to our cause. Every reporter in the field in Libya says the American "General Grant" tank stood up well, some saying the British conceded it was "the best in the field."

Defect Corrected

The only complaint heard from the front was that it has a limited traverse (a defect corrected in subsequent models). The trouble was only thirty per cent of the tanks in action were ours, seventy percent were British.

Furthermore those Nazi 88's were not in German tanks, but were towed or self-propelled field pieces (artillery). That gun seems to be about the only superiority the Germans had, and its effectiveness could have been offset by more careful use of American and British tanks (they ran into artillery traps).

It is officially correct that the British themselves believed they had more tanks, more planes and more troops than the Germans at the beginning of the battle. They requested nothing more from us.

All the mudslinging in the world cannot obliterate the fact that our side would have won if we had a general capable of smartly handling what he had.

Credit Has A Limit

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The House Ways and Means committee has its eyes on forthcoming election returns rather than on federal balance sheets, we suspect, when it voted against inclusion of a sales tax in the pending revenue bill.

Undoubtedly, as argued, a five per cent sales tax, as proposed, would fall very heavily on the low income-earning class. Added to taxes already carried and those yet to come, it would fall with great severity on other classes, too. But if there is anything in the fiscal picture so plain that nobody can miss it, it is that all of us are going to have to pay very painful taxes for a long time to come if wholesale repudiation is not to result.

Having rejected a sales tax, and apparently having in mind nothing practical with which to make up the revenue required by the rate of outgo, the next step for Congress is to courageously slash expenditures. There is a limit to what can be done on credit.

Morning Motto

You can never plan the future by the past.—BURKE

By MARK SULLIVAN

What is written here is only for the information and interest of readers. It is not for the enlightenment of officials who make decisions.

They have the responsibility, and they must supply the element of judgment. Also, they have later information, and more detailed, than can be had by any one else.

In the decision being made by Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt —about a "second front," and about the conduct of the war generally—a determining factor is shipping. Shipping is a limiting factor—it limits what can be done.

The figures about shipping are not all made public. Our government gives out the number of ships sunk by submarines and mines off our coast, though not the tonnage. The British government withholds all figures about sinkings. Two recent American figures about shipping are these: In a given month, sixty-four ships were sunk off our Atlantic coast. In the same month fifty-eight new ships were built in our yards. The two figures almost offset each other. While the number of new ships is somewhat smaller than the number sunk, the new ships probably have a greater tonnage. So we may say that we are building as much tonnage as is being sunk off our Atlantic coast. But when we say that, we say little.

Only a Part

The sinkings off our Atlantic coast are only a part of the whole. There are sinkings in the Pacific, by Japanese submarines, planes, and other means of destruction. There are sinkings in European waters, the figures of which are not reported. Altogether, as of today, and for some months past, it is safe to make two statements:

First, we are losing ships faster than we are building new ones. "We" means not only the United States; it means also Britain and the other United Nations. Second, Germany is building new submarines faster than we are sinking them.

In this condition, can we—at this time or in the near future—set up a new front in Europe? In trying to answer this, we are again baffled by uncertainty about figures. Just what would a new front mean—how large an American expeditionary force to be sent to Europe? Call it two million, which is a low figure.

Estimates Vary

To send such a force to Europe, estimates vary, almost fantastically. By one of the lower estimates, maintaining an American army of two million in Europe, equipped according to modern standards, would require the constant service of about half all the shipping America has. Can we spare half our shipping for that purpose at this time? Can we and Britain combined spare enough shipping to maintain two million American soldiers in Europe?

There are many other demands upon our shipping. Here is a partial list of places where American forces are stationed, which depend upon shipping for supplies: Iceland, Northern Ireland, England, Greenland, Newfoundland, several of the West Indies, Dutch Guiana in South America, the Panama Canal. Supplying the American forces at these places is a constant charge upon our shipping, in some cases helped by the shipping of Britain or other United Nations.

Here is a partial list of places in the Pacific, where American forces are stationed, and which are almost wholly dependent upon American shipping: Alaska, Dutch Harbor, Hawaii, Midway Island, Australia, New Caledonia.

Other Places

There are other places to which we send lease-lend supplies, requiring ships, ours or that of our allies. Most of these points are distant, the journeys there and back, long and hazardous. They include Murmansk and the Persian Gulf, entry points of supplies for Russia; Northern Africa, India. There is further need for shipping between the United States and Latin America, to procure indispensable materials.

Considering the immense and widespread need for all the shipping we have, all that the United Nations combined have, is it practicable to set up, at this time, a second front in Europe? In answering this question, some may be tempted to depart from strict dependence upon the shipping now in existence; they may rely upon two hopes or expectations. One is that the United States from now on will build an enormous quantity of new shipping; the other is that our navy will in time be able to check sinkings by the enemy.

A Military Decision

But is it prudent to make decisions in reliance upon future expectations? In this war expectations have gone wrong, frequently and disastrously. The prudent way to make this decision is to start with what we have, and submit to that limitation. We have so much shipping. With this amount of shipping, what can we do?

The decision should be a military one, strictly, not caused by sentimental considerations, or political ones. Sentimentally, it would be nice to tell Russia that a second front will be set up in 1942. Sentimentally and politically, it would be desirable to tell the people of France and the other conquered countries that there will be a second front before the present year ends. Other political considerations might be served by such an announcement. But the only sound basis for a decision about the time of a second front, is the present facts and the present military situation.

Anything Can Happen!

From the Pittsburgh Press

We used to be doubtful about perpetual motion. We never were quite sold on the Einstein theory. We thought the fourth dimension was just mathematical double-talk. But we take it all back.

Anything can happen. In Scarsdale, N. Y., the other day, Mrs. Harriet L. Rose, chief investigator for the municipal welfare department, who got $600 a year for her part-time services, asked for a cut to $300 because wartime unemployment had reduced her activities.

"I don't think it is fair," she said, "to take taxpayers' money for work I don't do."

She can't do that to us!

Writers Assert Japs Got Chance In Babying Policy

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Although Japan took the initiative in making war on the United States at Pearl Harbor, both Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt discussed in August, 1941, the issuance of an ultimatum to Japan which both men realized might bring on war. Churchill wanted it but David Lawrence

Mr. Roosevelt hesitated and preferred "to baby alone" the Japanese for three months. This is the sensational disclosure made by Earnest Lindley and Forrest Davis in an article in the current issue of "The Ladies Home Journal" which is prefaced by the magazine's editor with the statement that these two writers have been given access to something hitherto denied the Senate Foreign Relations committee and the members of Congress generally, namely access to the "files in the White House, the State Department and other government agencies" concerning the events that led up to our entry into World War II.

Answered at Pearl Harbor

The isolationists have all claimed that secret diplomacy and secret conversations were determining America's commitments and would lead to American participation in the war. The strongly worded note which was sent by the United States government to Japan on November 26, 1941, and which has often been referred to as an ultimatum because it served notice that Japan must in effect withdraw from China, was met by Japan on December 7, 1941 with an attack at Pearl Harbor, but the events that preceded and, which indicated that America expected was told by Messrs. Lindley and Davis in what must constitute the most striking piece of pre-war history yet published.

"The transatlantic exchange of views" (on December 7, 1941) states in part, "reminded the president of a difference over Far Eastern policy that developed between him and the prime minister when they met in a 'Newfoundland night' for the Atlantic conference (August, 1941). Churchill wished to meet the issue head on. He asked the president—as the British, Australians and Dutch repeatedly had besought this government before—to join in an ultimative declaration to Japan.

Deadline Sought

"For some time the other Pacific powers had sought to establish a deadline in the Far East, striving notice on the Nipponese empire that thus far, and no farther, might they go—a deadline political as well as geographical, setting bounds to pressure on other states as well as to the enlargement of Japanese forces in Indo-China. "While such a move entailed the risk of a general war, it might further procrastination, believed it might bring the Japanese to book.

President Temporized

"Unlike the prime minister, Mr. Roosevelt lacked the constitutional capacity to make a commitment involving the possibility of automatic hostilities. Only Congress can declare war. There were, moreover, other considerations. Mr. Roosevelt believed in August, 1941, evidence in the hands of the State department, that war in the Pacific was a matter of weeks or months. Yet he knew the country's unreadiness. The president, therefore, temporized.

"Wouldn't we be better off in three months?" he asked. "Churchill agreed, still doubting, however, that such a respite would be forthcoming without concerted action now.

"Leave that to me," said the president. "I think I can baby them along for three months."

Implication Out

"A historic unpublished aspect of the Atlantic conference, the incident should dispose of an implication sometimes heard: that the United States projected an unwelcome Britain into the Far Eastern war.

"On December seventh, Mr. Roosevelt reflected that he had babyed the Japanese along for almost four months, not three. He had naturally been aware that the Japanese concurrently were babying along the western powers. Their motives, were, however, for innocent. The Japanese, reading us for the kill, needed time to mature their treachery. In the light of their Atlantic conversations, neither Roosevelt nor Churchill was surprised on December seventh, although both were taken aback by the fullness of the blow. On their timetables, war in that quarter was overdue."

Final 4-H Health Contest Will Be Held in Garrett

Approximately 100 Are Registered for Camping Program

The final county health contest for the year for the 4-H club members will be held July 7 at the 4-H camp in the Pleasant Valley Recreation area, near Bittering, in Garrett county, climaxing the camp theme of "Health and Nutrition."

Representatives from each club will participate and the winner will represent the county in the state contest to be held at College Park, in August.

Approximately 100 members from the different clubs in Allegany county have registered for the camp to be held from July 5 to 11. One of the features of the camp is that the girls are permitted to pay one-half of the registration fee in fresh vegetables or fruits. Buses will leave the court house at 2 p. m. July 5, and stop at the LaVale Fire House, the Six Mile House, Clarksburg Inn, Eckhart Junior Order hall, and the Frostburg post office.

Classes will be conducted in music, folk dancing, swimming, handicraft, story-telling and nature lore. Parents and friends are invited to attend "Visitors' Day" July 10, beginning at 2 o'clock.

Miss Dorothy Emerson, College Park, state girl club agent, will conduct a leadership training course at the camp from July 1 to 5. She will also instruct the campers in conducting the assembly programs and the vesper services.

The Junior Extension club members have been invited to be campers at camp for the July 4-5 week, instead of the originally planned June 27-28 weekend, in order to serve gasoline.

And There She Was At the Station

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (P) — Private Kenneth Heckle of Memphis looked out of his troop train and blinked

Cut this out for future reference. This is the only announcement we will make.

We have an immediate need for huge quantities of rubber. We want every bit of used rubber you can possibly spare. We are setting aside the period from June 15 to June 30 to get the old rubber in.

We have asked the filling station operators to help . . . And they have generously and patriotically agreed to help—they and the oil companies which serve them.

We want used rubber in every form. Take it to your nearest filling station.

One thing you can be sure of—we are going to see to it that there is enough rubber to build the planes to bomb Tokyo and Berlin—enough rubber to win this war.

—from President Roosevelt's radio address of June 12, 1942

Bring in your Scrap Rubber NOW

Take your old tires, garden hose, hot water bottles, etc., to any gasoline dealer...before July 1st

RUBBER...AMERICA'S No. 1 SHORTAGE

92% of the world's natural rubber resources are now in Axis hands.

So President Roosevelt has sent out an S. O. S. call urging every man, woman and child in America to get in the scrap.

To help speed your scrap rubber to the fighting fronts the Petroleum Industry—through its War Council—has quickly and unanimously mobilized almost a million employees and 400,000 service stations from coast to coast.

Every gasoline dealer's station is a scrap rubber collection depot. He is authorized to pay you a penny a pound for your scrap rubber, if you do not wish to donate it. Every ounce of rubber you turn over to him will be delivered to the Government without profit to the Oil Industry.

The need is urgent. The War won't wait. So get in as much as you can—as soon as you can!

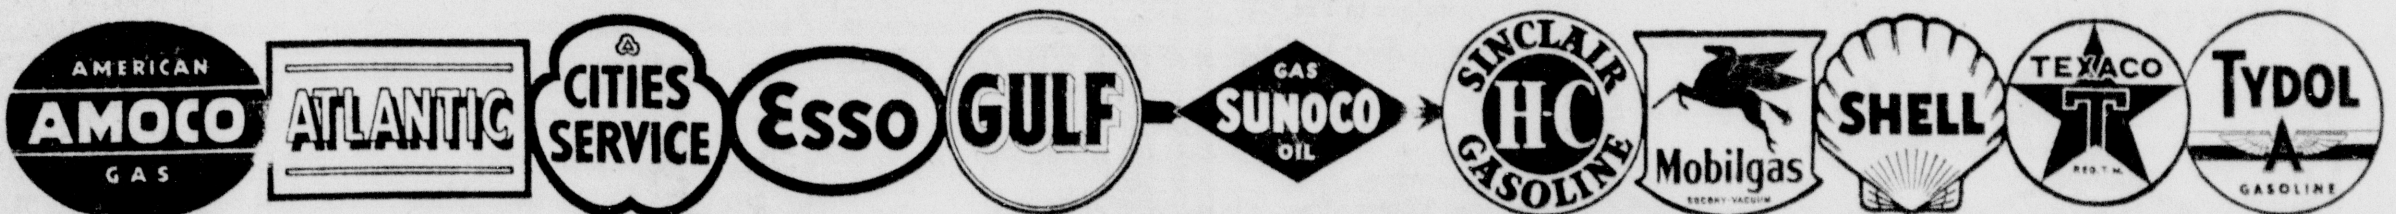

If you don't want to donate your scrap rubber your gasoline dealer is authorized to pay you a penny a pound for it.

Scour the attic, garage, cellar, yard, farm—for rubber articles like these:

TIRES	INNER TUBES	HARD RUBBER TIRES	CREPE RUBBER SOLES	BOOTS
OVERSHOES	HOT WATER BOTTLES	TENNIS SHOES	RUBBER BELTING	RUBBER GLOVES
RUBBER SHEETING	PADS AND MATTING	RAINCOATS	RUBBER HEELS	BATHING CAPS
JAR RINGS	PLUMBER'S SUCTION CAPS	RUBBER ASH TRAYS

Get in the Scrap! Help win the War!

Every Gasoline Station is a Scrap Rubber Collection Depot

This message is published in the interest of the entire Oil Industry by companies whose trademarks appear above. The Petroleum Industry Scrap Rubber Drive is functioning through the organization of the Petroleum Coordinator for War. It is being conducted, nationally, under the immediate sponsorship of the Petroleum Industry War Council.

Romance Thumbs a Ride

by ALLEN EPPES

SYNOPSIS
DIAN WESTON, an Ardendale girl, who has just been fitted, more or less accidentally, with a new dress, is a beautiful girl.
BILL BOLLEIN, New York artist, who has just been fitted also, by an Ardendale girl.
CLAIRE LESTER, Claire has turned down Bill, saying that she has discovered she loves
PAUL, PETER, a local boy, who is now an engineer.

CHAPTER TEN
"BILL SEEMS different in this setting," Claire said, a dreamy look in her lovely eyes. "So masculine—and so much the master of the situation. Anyway, Paul, I want more time to think—to study you both in this lonely spot."
"What do you think we are—bugs under glass?"
Claire laughed. "That's cute, Paul. Really it is."

"Maybe you ought to get Rollins and me on a desert island."
"Why, Paul?"
"So we could show you how clever we are at building shacks, and starting fires by rubbing two sticks together."
"Oh, Paul, can you really do that? How clever!"
Paul groaned. "Well, I'll be damned!" he said.
"Paul, please," said Claire. "Then stop talking nonsense. The way you talk is enough to make a man swear."
"That's because you're utterly unreasonable," said Claire.
"Me—unreasonable?" said Paul. "Ye gods and little fishes!"

"Besides," Claire went on, "I think comparing you and Bill—testing you—is a perfectly logical idea, and—"
"Maybe it is," said Paul, "from the feminine point of view. But forget it, Claire. We've got other things to think about."
"Nothing as important."
"Getting married—that's more important."
"Not at the moment—no."
"Listen, Claire," said Paul firmly. "We're going to be married the moment we can get the J. P.—and that's final."
Claire opened her mouth to say something scathing, but didn't say it. Dian called to them from the dining room.

"Come on out here, you two, and make yourselves useful," she said. "Well," said Claire, springing to her feet. "That's certainly a break—getting away from your dictatorial ideas."
"Oh, yes!" Paul said. "I suppose you'll start testing Bill in the kitchen."

"Maybe. Anyway, it's a good place to begin."
Claire hurried into the dining room, Paul right behind her.
Out there, Dian showed them where the tablecloths and silver were kept.

"You two can set the table," she said. "Bill and I will have the coffee and beans ready in a jiffy." She turned to Bill, who was in the doorway watching, an amused expression upon his face. "All right, Bill," she said, "come on and stir the beans before they scorch."

"Okay," said Bill.
"No—wait a minute," Claire said. "Let Paul stir the beans." She smiled at him. "After all you've told me, darling, about roughing it in the wilds, you ought to be a marvel with a frying pan."
"But, Claire," Paul protested, "Dian told us to get the table ready and—"

"Bill can help me with the table," said Claire. "You go stir the beans. I think you and Dian ought to get along marvelously—in a kitchen."
"Thanks," said Dian.
"Oh, all right," said Paul. He and Dian went out together. Bill leaned against the sideboard. He studied Claire intently, a furrow between his brows.
"Anything wrong with me, Bill?" Claire asked.
"No," said Bill. "Oh, no. I was just thinking about the way you function—when a situation like this comes up."
"What do you mean?" Claire was puzzled.

"Oh, let's just forget it," said Bill.
"But I don't want to forget it. I want to know what you were really thinking."
"I was thinking how lovely your hair looks in the softness of the lamplight," Bill lied.

Claire smiled. "Bill, how sweet of you."
Bill walked over to the table. "Shall we get on with the business at hand?" he said.
"Yes," said Claire. "Let's."
"Nice and cozy, isn't it?" said Bill, after several seconds of rather awkward silence.
"Yes," said Claire. "It is. Like some of the times we had in your studio..."

As Claire and Bill placed a cloth upon the table, and arranged silver and china for four, Claire found herself remembering New York and the gay times she and Bill had enjoyed up there together.
That evening in the rainbow room, 65 floors above the sidewalk of Radio City! How beautifully Bill

Can't Keep Arm in Place

LONDON (AP)—Maurice Carter, 25, a healthy lad at 16, has since dislocated his left arm nearly 800 times, an average of twice a week. Invalid for eight years, he dare not wear a heavy overcoat because the arm dislocates so easily.

War-time demands for nitrates has occasioned the opening in Chile of an important plant which has been idle for twelve years, the department of Commerce says.

Science Is Busy Solving Problems In the Field of Aviation Medicine

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D. One of the factors in the situation seems to be that if the adrenal glands can be kept active, the endurance of aviators at high altitudes will be considerably increased. Animal experiments have shown that the adrenal glands can be stimulated and by using this stimulant animals can be kept in a rarefied atmosphere for a much longer time than has been believed possible.

Military Secrets

I am not at liberty to divulge the method used, which comes under the heading of a military secret, but the man to whom I spoke is a conservative research worker and seemed to feel that this was one of the great steps in aviation in this field.

Another field of medical character in which advances are being made is on the different types of goggles and spectacles used by the armed forces in various forms of combat. This also is a military secret but is sufficiently important that high officials regard it as one of the great improvements in army equipment of the last few months.

Another war item has to do with the serious shortage of surgical gauze, bandages and other first-aid materials. Dr. George Baehr, chief of the Office of Civilian Defense Medical Division, says "This unlimited purchasing of first-aid materials is based upon a wrong conception of air raid casualties. These casualties are usually of such severity that only trained emergency medical field units are competent to attend the injured at the site of an accident." England's experience revealed that bomb casualties were relatively few in proportion to the amount of property damage, but a large percentage of the victims died within a short time after the injury unless they received surgical attention from trained field units headed by physicians.

Not Necessary

Inasmuch as the program of the Office of Civilian Defense, as it affects hospitals, makes simple provision for emergency medical field units and ambulance facilities, the present drain on first aid materials is not only useless but genuinely hazardous. An illustration of what is happening, Dr. Baehr stated that one of our cities purchased 50,000 first aid kits for its school teachers, and that every warden's post, every apartment building and every floor of every municipal and other government building was being equipped with first aid supplies. James M. Landis, director of the Office of Civilian Defense, adds: (Continued on Page 12, Col. 3)

Boys and Girls Urged To Attend Summer Schools

Dr. Myers Says High School Youths Should Take Typing Courses

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

No healthy high school boy or girl can afford to be idle this summer. Many who are unemployed and at home would be unpatriotic if they didn't share in doing the humble jobs about the home. Also they should enter some courses at a local summer school, if at all possible. On Sundays they will do well to go to Sunday school.

Many youths of high school and college age should take courses in typing. Many girls will be needed for clerical work before this war ends. Some of them should have stenography as well as typing. But the boys could concentrate on typing. The army and navy are in great need of recruits who can type accurately, but not of stenographers.

Need for Typists

In learning to type the emphasis should be placed on accuracy. Speed will take care of itself. If accuracy is well established in the early stages of learning. Many typing teachers urge the learning youth to speed too early. They should do the opposite and induce him not to hurry but to think only of accuracy until the skill has been pretty well mastered.

High school youths who are likely to be barred from the services because of physical defects would be smart to enter shop courses which will fit them for war industries.

Most high school and college youths should do more good reading this summer than ever before. Those who are poor readers could improve greatly were they to read daily from books no harder than those meant for fifth or sixth grade classes.

Nutrition and Nursing

Bright boys entering high school next fall should give medicine strong consideration; bright girls should enter courses like home economics and chemistry, which prepare them for work in nutrition and nursing. Such services will be in demand long after victory comes to this war-torn, sorrowing, suffering world.

However, a few high school and college students worn and weary from school work need to avoid anything which is like their school work of the past year. A few will need to loaf for several weeks.

Many teachers should also have a rest. While it is a fine thing for teachers to keep learning, some would do a more patriotic service to their country and be better fitted for a long hard winter ahead if they would relax and engage in activities less nerve-wearing.

Solving Parent Problem

Q. Do you still have your selected list of books about going to college, choosing a college, and making good at college?

A. Yes; to be had by writing me at 235 East Forty-fifth street, New York city. You may also have a selected list of books on vocations, choosing and preparing for a job.

slaw for a salad, cooked as a vegetable or used as sauerkraut. Late cabbage plants should be spaced 18 to 24 inches apart in the row, with the rows about 30 inches apart.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, when transplanting cabbage in warm weather set the plants deeper than they stood before. Place them so that the soil comes up to the first leaf. The top of each leaf can be sheared off in order to check evaporation, unless the plants are tiny.

Late cabbages are usually set out between the first and fifteenth of July. If planted too early the heads will mature in warm weather and burst. When this happens push the plants over. This breaks some of the roots and checks the development.

Science Is Busy

The rapidly increasing wastage of gauze bandages and other first aid materials is reaching alarming proportions which may threaten the supplies available for the military forces and civilian defense needs. Air raid wardens will not be expected to care for the wounded in the event of an air raid, but because of the present misunderstanding, tens of thousands of them are stocking up on first aid materials and are urging everyone in their zones to do so. Most households are merely duplicating the materials already in their medical cabinets.

Questions and Answers

G. M. E.—Are active thyroid and active goiter the same thing and if not, what are the symptoms of active goiter?

Answer: This question was asked by a person whose doctor has told him that there is perhaps a slight enlargement of the thyroid, but that it would not give him any trouble. The symptoms that bother him are the feeling of a lump in the throat and pain in the chest. These symptoms is seems to me are mostly nervous in type and have no relation to the thyroid and he had better forget them.

Hardy Merchants Warned To File Ceiling Prices

Volunteers Are Requested To Aid in Gas Registration July 9, 10, 11

MOOREFIELD, June 24 — W. D. McCauley, chairman of the Hardy County Rationing Board, voiced a warning that all retail merchants are to file a list of their ceiling prices on living commodities with the rationing board before July 1. McCauley stated that he had received information that the time would not be extended.

The rationing board requests volunteers in all parts of the county to assist in the issuance of gasoline ration books, July 9, 10, and 11. This appeal is made necessary due to the fact that so many teachers are away from the summer.

Registration will take place at the following places: Moorefield, Durbin, Old Fields, Blue Rock school house, near Charles T. Smith's residence, Wardensville, Baker, Mathias, and Burch school on top of the mountain.

The board chairman emphasized the fact that those persons desiring sugar for canning must get their certificates before July 1.

Stamp No. 5 in your sugar ration book is good for the period June 24 to July 25, both dates inclusive, for two pounds of sugar, and stamp No. 6 is good for the same amount in the period from July 26 to August 22, both dates inclusive.

McCauley said all industrial and institutional consumers of sugar must apply for their July and August needs from today to July 5.

At last week's meeting of the board, certificates for tires were granted as follows:

Obsolete tires: Hayes Kirk, Bergton, two; Brown Cain, Rig, two; H. L. Branson, Lost River, two tires and two tubes.

New truck tires: Lancy Hammon, Mathias, two and two tubes; Vance Barr, Moorefield, two and two tubes; Roy P. Wilkins, Wardensville, one tire.

Passenger retreads: Charles W. Shantz, Inkerman, three. Passenger tubes: the Rev. James E. Hodges, Wardensville.

Miss Altha Lee Snyder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Snyder, of Moorefield, became the bride of Harry E. Schutte, Jr., of Washington, in the Francis Asbury Methodist Episcopal church, Washington, Tuesday, June 16. The Rev. Dr. Robin Gould officiated.

The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Snyder and Jean attending the wedding from Moorefield.

About thirty Washington friends of the couple attended the ceremony, following which the bride and groom left on a honeymoon trip to Maryland's Eastern Shore. Mr. and Mrs. Schutte will reside in Washington.

USO Quota Exceeded

A total of $1,423.08 on the Hardy County USO drive was reported by Mrs. R. S. Kuykendall, treasurer of the county organization, this week. The quota for the USO in this county was $800 and at the present time this amount has been exceeded by $623.08.

Allegany county will probably rate at the top of the list for collection of scrap rubber, according to R. B. MacBeth, chairman of the campaign. Up until yesterday afternoon a total of 93,890 pounds of scrap rubber had been collected, MacBeth reported.

MacBeth said the collection has been averaging 28,000 pounds per day and if the trend continues until July 1 over 300,000 pounds will be realized. That would amount to more than three pounds per person in Allegany county, he added.

When the drive started it was expected that about 200,000 pounds would be raised and MacBeth said 250,000 pounds are almost certain. Members of the Farm Bureau have been instructed to bring in their scrap rubber to add to the amount now on hand, MacBeth said.

Lost Youngster Is Center of Attention At Police Headquarters

Arnold Phillips, six-year-old Longacres resident, was lost in Cumberland for several hours yesterday afternoon but he had a good time in police headquarters.

The boy, visiting on Central avenue with his mother, went to a park to play but wandered downtown when he started for home.

Police took him to headquarters to try to locate his mother. They piled him with money, tried to get him to eat but with nary a question would he answer except to tell his name.

He was the center of attraction of Police Commissioner James Orr and officers who reported to headquarters after 1 o'clock. But he wouldn't talk and he wouldn't eat.

About 6 o'clock Mrs. J. D. Whaley, wife of Officer Whaley, came to headquarters and told the youngster "I'll bet if you go eat with me your mother will be here when you come back."

That turned the trick and broke down the boy's resistance.

Oddly enough, the boy's mother was waiting for him at headquarters when he got back there. You could tell he was happy from the beeline he made to her embrace.

$460,000 IS ALLEGANY COUNTY'S WAR BOND QUOTA FOR JULY

Allegany county's war bond sales quota for the month of July has been placed at approximately $460,000, according to an announcement made yesterday by the Cumberland mercantile bureau which has pledged to raise $45,000.

July has been designated as "Retailers for Victory" month and local merchants are making plans to inaugurate the campaign with a suspension of retail sales for a fifteen minute period, noon to 12:15 p. m., July 1.

Throughout the month, publicity will be given the drive by newspapers, radio, window displays and billboard advertising. At least one city wide contest will be sponsored by the mercantile bureau and prizes will be awarded to the winners.

From one to four days of the month will be set aside for Boy and Girl Scouts to augment sales personnel in selling the stamps. Merchants also will place special emphasis on the payroll deduction plan for employees.

Huge Air Training School Rises near Madison, Wis.; To Have 1,200 on Faculty

By DAVID VELIE
Central Press Correspondent
MADISON, Wis. — A large Army air training school will soon arise east of this city to train thousands of young Americans for combat service as airplane radio operators and mechanics.

The federal government has bought or leased 1,300 acres east of Madison for this institution, which is expected to be the largest of its kind in the middle west. Its capacity will be 15,000 students. By late August or early September, Army officers are confident the construction will have proceeded far enough to begin instructing the first of the thousands of young men who will come here for training.

That training will be preliminary to air service all over the world under the United Nations banners for those young men.

Faculty of 1,200

Lieut. Col. Oscar L. Rogers, commander of the new institution, said that the school's capacity will be from 12,000 to 15,000 students. The faculty alone will number 1,200, or one for every 10 students. Three hundred Army barracks will be built to house the students and provide classroom space for instructional activities.

The 300-acre Madison municipal airport will serve as the hub of the institution. Leased by the government from the city of Madison for one dollar a year "for the duration," the airport will be used exclusively by the Army in conducting this school. Some civilian air activities formerly carried on at this field, such as handling airmail and transporting civilian passengers, may be continued. For the time being, plans call for exclusive government use of the airport.

Before it is completed, this sprawling air technical school will have transformed a peaceful semi-rural countryside to a bustling scene of airplane activities. No less than 120 buildings, many of them farm buildings, will be moved out of the area to make way for the buildings for the school. Cost of constructing this school is estimated at $5,000,000.

The principal aim of this institution, said Colonel Rogers, will be to train radio operators and mechanics for combat service in the Army. A six-month course will be given to its students, who will be taught the fine points of airplane radio operation and maintenance work from A to Z.

Diplomas, Ratings

New courses for these Army students will start every two weeks, Colonel Rogers explained. The school's graduates will receive diplomas, with special ratings given those who make the best records.

There will not, however, be any public commencement days, and the Army will not report how many men have graduated, who they are, or where they have been sent after graduation. That is in keeping with the Army's policy of revealing no information of possible assistance to the enemy.

"In training men for airplane work as radio engineers and mechanics," said Colonel Rogers, "we will attempt to mold these men into integral parts of the armed service. The graduates will study in heavy planes and on the ground as operators, in stalling radio sets in airplanes, and in airplane radio repair and maintenance."

"All Army combat planes have radio equipment, which is vital in providing control of plane flights in 'soupy' weather. Radio can give notice of the sighting of an enemy convoy, and that and other war-time uses can mean much when only seconds are valuable."

Specially trained Army men and civilians from technical institutions

PIONEER WORKER

No newcomer to the aviation industry is Veronica Coskey, who is pictured sewing fabric on an alleron for a Brewster Buccaneer dive bomber in an eastern factory. When aviation was young, twenty-five years ago, she was the first woman to enter the aircraft production field.

In many parts of the nation will be recruited to make up this school's faculty.

Veteran in Air Corps

The school's buildings will be temporary Army barracks, which might conceivably be abandoned after the war is over, the colonel said. There always is the possibility, however, he added, that the air training school might be continued after the war.

Colonel Rogers is a veteran of Army Air Corps instructional work in the last two decades. He enlisted in the Air Corps in 1917 for World War duty. Since then, he has been training men in radio communication, flying and bombing in many Army training centers of the nation.

Maj. F. E. Robbins, area engineer in charge of construction here, reported that plans for the school's buildings have been completed. He was transferred to Madison from Camp Edwards, Mass., where he was area construction engineer and constructing quarters.

This new air school will have at least as many students as this state's famous University of Wisconsin, located on the west side of Madison, which has a normal enrollment of 12,000.

Housing Problem

Because of the vanguard of some 7,000 to 10,000 construction workers are beginning to arrive in Madison, city officials here are worried about the housing situation.

Mayor James R. Law has called on local landlords and residents to avoid raising rents and prices for the Army air students. An emergency housing committee has been formed to make listings of all available houses and rooms that can be used by faculty members and students from the new school. Key men for the new institution are already in Madison, busily mapping out details.

Madison also has the problem of handling the overflow of workers from the Badger Ordnance works, a huge ordnance plant being built in neighboring Sauk county. An acute housing shortage, therefore, is envisioned here, now that the war program is rapidly making this area into an important arms and training center.

The United States imported $43,527,671 worth of cane sugar from the Philippines in 1940.

Boys Prepare To Serve Their Country

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn. (AP) — Nineteen-year-old Edwin Bozeman was given a disability discharge from U. S. military service, but he wanted to keep on serving his country. The result was Elizabeth-ton's American boys reserve officers' corps.

The corps is an independent military unit, made up of boys from 15 to 19 years old. Its object is to give the youths a preliminary idea of what Army life is like and to prepare them for regular military service.

Drills are held twice weekly. Training and drilling are along the same lines required by the U. S. Army. A field inspection is held and bodies must be clean, hair brushed, shoes shined and uniforms clean and pressed.

The unit has no guns now, but plans to use wooden guns later on.

This Kind of Widow Shouldn't Mourn

NEW YORK (AP) — If your wife complains about sitting home night after night while you work the swing shift in a war industry plant, try this bit of psychology on her:

Pat her on the back and tell her she is a "MacArthur widow."

The phrase and advice are offered by Joseph Mladinov, research director of the Labor Relations Institute. He says it will cheer up the little woman and help her to realize that you and she are both in there fighting along with General MacArthur's boys in Australia.

Any woman will be glad to be known as a "MacArthur widow," Mladinov says, and it certainly has a more patriotic connotation than the "golf widows" of peacetime.

Sweden's Slogan Dig for Victory

STOCKHOLM (AP) — In an effort to increase its store of foodstuffs, neutral Sweden has united under the slogan, "Dig For Victory." A survey reveals that residents of cities and towns throughout the land have signed up for plots of land in which to raise potatoes for the coming winter.

In Stockholm more than 10,500 plots of ground have been leased so far, in comparison with a normal leaseage of 4,000 plots. In Gothenburg, 2,500,000 square meters of land in the unbuild sections have been rented to 13,000 residents. In Eskilstuna, 675 plots of land in the city parks have been provided, in addition to the normal 800 plots local collection turned in since the campaign began last Monday.

Humphrey Bogart Cast As 'Big Shot' Bad Guy

Humphrey Bogart is up to his old tricks again. On the side of law and order in "The Maltese Falcon" and "All Through the Night," he now returns to his underworld haunts as a full-fledged gangster in Warner Brothers' thrilling new film, "The Big Shot." The picture will make its local bow at the Liberty theater tomorrow.

Tough is a meek word to describe the type of role played by Bogart in this film. He's cast as a three-time loser who can't go straight because of his record and who is afraid to do anything crooked because next time it's up the river for keeps. He ducks the police like a plague and tries to give equal attention to his former cohorts, but the effort is useless. He finally allows some of his former pals to persuade (or rather goad) him into acting as the "brains" in an armored car stickup.

In the feminine lead is the newcomer to the screen—lovely, blonde Irene Manning, a girl whose dramatic ability coupled with her fine voice (although she doesn't sing in this film) is a sure ticket to screen success. She is cast as a girl who was in love with Bogart just before he was sent to prison a third time.

Sothern and Skelton Romance Is a Riot

Comedy is the keynote of "Maisie Gets Her Man," new M-G-M film which opens today at the Maryland theater. The film which co-stars Ann Sothern and Red Skelton, is the most successful of the series about Brooklyn-born Maisie.

Although cast as a corny vaudeville comic who doesn't quite make the grade, Skelton has never been funnier. An army-camp sequence which concludes the film is one of the most hilarious scenes of the season, thanks to expert comedy talent. As Maisie, Miss Sothern has never been more brilliantly entertaining.

In this new "Maisie" picture Miss Sothern emerges as a knife-thrower's assistant who is out of a job. She wanders into the "Larceny Building." There she meets Red Skelton. They form a vaudeville team which fails and they get into trouble when they become involved with a shady health-water racket. Pace of the film is kept at a swift tempo by Director Ray Del Ruth. He is ably aided and abetted by such expert supporting players as Allen Jenkins, Donald Meek, Leo Gorcey, Fritz Feld, and Regis Ragland.

Few pictures have demanded more versatility of its leading players. Red Skelton, a zany comedian, is called upon to play in one scene a heartbroken young lad who is a failure on the stage.

Headache Lucky For Claire Dodd

Many and varied are the ways of getting into the movies, but Claire Dodd's method possibly was the most unusual of all. She did it with a headache.

Miss Dodd, appearing with Kent Taylor and Frances Langford in Universal's "Mississippi Gambler," now at the Strand theater, was a dancing student in Hollywood when her strange experience took place. Suffering a headache one day, she visited a doctor. The latter took one look at his patient and exclaimed, "You should be in pictures." He called a film producer friend and a screen test was arranged which resulted in a contract for the highly surprised Miss Dodd. Her career hasn't been entirely devoted to the screen, however, while working in a picture Miss Dodd was persuaded by the late Florenz Ziegfeld to appear in his Broadway production of "Smiles." She continued in Ziegfeld shows until the producer's death, after which she resumed her screen work with increasing success.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour 2 pints of bile juice into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Then gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sick and the world looks pink.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Take as directed. Effective in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. 10c and 25c.

matter for each of the contracting parties. I am looking at it from a purely practical standpoint. Girls who marry our fighting men should be prepared to accept the consequences. There's glamor in uniforms, and men in military training may be more aggressive and reckless than they would otherwise.

Parents should do their part, Dr. Hawk declared, in helping to guide and ease the road for their son's war bride. "Parents unfortunately are prone to regard a marriage under such circumstances as hasty and ill-advised. However, they are probably the most able to help out if they have a sympathetic attitude toward the new daughter-in-law."

Wives and sweethearts play an important role in the war, the professor emphasized. "Nothing is more demoralizing to a man in service than to know or suspect that his wife or sweetheart is attentive to other men, men who for some reason or another are not in service and who are in a position to spend money on them and show them a good time."

"The best policy for the girls at home is to do nothing which could form the basis of any comment. It seems to me that one of the finest forms of loyalty which wives and sweethearts can render during these times is to avoid any appearance of interest in another man. The policy agreed upon by members of my class for a girl whose affections are with a man in service is to go out with married couples only.

"Sending cheerful, affectionate letters to men in service is one of the most considerate things the girl at home can do. Presents are nice to send, but the men have most everything they need. But a heart-warming letter is something that is really appreciated."

The government should take a hand in helping to keep homes intact during the war, Dr. Hawk believes, and also in seeing to it that children whose fathers gave their lives for their country are not deprived of fundamental benefits which they could expect to receive had their father remained at home.

For girls coming into contact with men in uniform, Dr. Hawk's advice is, "Be a good playfellow. Encourage companionship and help the man in uniform to enjoy his leave in every way possible in a healthy and normal manner. Girls should avoid taking a noble sacrifice attitude in marrying a service man."

Approves Aussie Marriages

Regarding the matter of marriages of American soldiers to girls in Australia, which has become a subject of concern in Allied war councils in the Pacific, the professor heartily approves of them "if the boys intend to stay in Australia and settle down after the war with their wives or if they are determined to bring their brides back to the United States with them after the war."

Dr. Hawk first attained recognition as an associate professor of psychology at Mount Holyoke college. As the author of a dozen books on various aspects of psychology, she was made a member of the staff of the University of Southern California in 1932.

The scope of demands made upon Trojan co-eds for Red Cross work, ambulance driving, and in helping to entertain men in uniform belittled in southern California brought the decision of officials to open a course this month on Marriage Problems in Time of War. On the campus it is known as the class for war brides, actual or prospective.

Dip Needle Solves Quicksand Secret

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Leo Craun, civilian pilot instructor at the University of Oklahoma, tried to drive across the Canadian river but his car stalled.

He went for help but when he returned the car had disappeared. For two weeks he searched. Finally Lorenz Shock, university physics instructor, took a hand.

With a dip needle — commonly known as a doodle bug — the physics teacher probed the river sands. At long last the needle dipped.

"Your car is buried here — in quicksand," reported Shock. And sure enough it was.

Yanks Register Second Straight Win over Browns

Bombers Take Another Step Out of Their Slump with 6-4 Victory

ST. LOUIS, June 24. (P)—The New York Yankees took another step out of their slump today with their second straight victory over the St. Louis Browns, 6 to 4 in a free hitting affair.

Joe DiMaggio had another good day, driving in two runs with two singles. In the first inning, Frank Crosetti walked and DiMaggio brought him home with a hit after two were out. Then Charley Keller singled Joe to third and a passed ball by Rick Ferrell let him score.

The Yanks got a run in the third on Tom Henrich's double and Charley Keller's triple and two more in the fourth when Pitcher Marvin Bremer tripled and Buddy Hassett and Henrich each doubled.

Bremer, however, gave five successive singles in the fifth for three St. Louis runs and in the seventh allowed three more hits and a run, forcing Johnny Murphy to take over the mound chores.

The Yanks finished off with a run in the ninth and Bremer received credit for the victory.

Manager Luke Sewell and Second Baseman Don Gutteridge of the Browns were banished by umpires during an argument that followed Gutteridge being called out trying to steal second. The box score:

Burnett Defends State Golf Title

Indian Springs Linksman Seeks Third Amateur Crown at Baltimore

BALTIMORE, June 24. (P)—Bettled Volney Burnett of Indian Springs will seek his third state amateur golf crown tomorrow when the twenty-second Maryland amateur golf tournament opens at the Baltimore Country Club.

Burnett took top laurels in the 37 and 41 tests and is attempting to equal B. Warren Corkran's record of three triumphs. Approximately 100 linksmen will be out to hinder Burnett in his quest, among them such threats as Ray Swearingen and M. Parker Nolan, both of Washington, and Bill Cole, of Baltimore.

Several local golf greats will be present from the scene, since they are serving in the armed forces. Among those are Otto Greiner, Herbert Wagner, Jr., and Jesse Downing. Prominent contenders include Harris Jones, Donald McPhail, Edgar Lucas, and Bob Swindell. Baltimore Country Club; Bob Jones and John Mackenzie, Hillendale; Marshall Neel and Bob Sulzer, Maryland Country Club; and Spencer Overton, Rolling Road. Overton is a former state and Middle Atlantic champion.

Dr. Stuart Buppert, unattached; Dr. Averil Stowell, Mount Pleasant; and Ed Norton, Clifton Park, will lead the field to the first tee for the eighteen-hole qualifying round. Medal play will continue throughout the day and match play will start on Friday and continue through Saturday over the Five Farms course.

PAUL WANER GETS ONE-THOUSANDTH WALK

BOSTON, June 24. (P)—Paul Waner, Boston Braves outfielder who last week became the seventh man in big league baseball to chalk up his one thousandth hit, today got his one thousandth walk. The base on balls was given him by Howard Kist in the first game of a doubleheader with the St. Louis Cardinals.

BASEBALL BANTER

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, June 24. (P)—Some Brooklyn fans are complaining that Lefty French is being worked too hard by the Dodgers because they see him in the bull pen nearly every day. . . . They don't know that when French settled his hold-out last spring he made a private agreement with the club to base his pay on the number of innings he pitched. . . . Mickey Harris, the former Boston Red Sox pitcher now stationed with the army in the Canal Zone, is visiting his parents here at the start of a thirty-day furlough and will leave for the Great Lakes Naval Training Station tomorrow to begin training for the Cleveland all-star game.

Billy Jurges, the fine shortstop of the New York Giants, has not made an error in twenty consecutive games and has made only five all season. . . . They say a raise in pay by the Cleveland Indians helped make up Oris Hockett's mind to stay in baseball as much as the base hits he got against the Yankees. . . . Rookie Willard Donovan of the Boston Braves has such a deceptive pitching motion he is reputed the best hurler in the majors at picking runners off first. . . . Babe Herman, now a first baseman, is hitting .382 for Hollywood in the Pacific Coast League.

There is some talk of a nine game World Series this fall. . . . This would be one way of making sure that the New York Yankees don't win in four straight. . . . Mel Ott holds the National League record for runs batted in with about 1,590 but he has two men to pass before he starts chasing Babe Ruth's 2,209 major league mark. . . . Jimmie Foxx had 1,866 RBI before transferring to the Cubs and Al Simmons knocked in 1,813 runs before retiring.

The best tribute to the Cincinnati Reds' pitching is that the club is third in the standings, although last in the National League in both hitting and fielding. . . . Things aren't easy enough for the Dodgers, with their eight game lead, they get to play fifteen of their last seventeen games in September at home. . . . Johnny Gee, the $75,000 beauty of the Pittsburgh Pirates who refused to join the Portland, Ore., club when he was optioned there last year, now has balked at joining Atlanta of the Southern Association after Pittsburgh transferred his option from Toronto.

TODAY'S PITCHERS

NEW YORK, June 24. (P)—Probable pitchers in the major leagues tomorrow (won-lost records in parentheses):

American League
New York at St. Louis—Chandler (7-2) vs. Galehouse (5-6).
Boston at Detroit—Hughson (6-2) vs. White (5-5).

Philadelphia at Cleveland—Wolf (7-6) vs. Smith (5-5).
Washington at Chicago—Hudson (4-7) vs. Ross (1-2).

National League
Cincinnati at Brooklyn (twilight)—Starr (10-2) vs. Davis (8-2).
St. Louis at Boston—Cooper (9-3) vs. Javery (5-7).

Chicago at Philadelphia—Lee (8-6) vs. Podajny (3-6).
Only games scheduled.

In the Saddle, Now
GALVESTON, Tex. (P)—Eddie Cole, the Texas leaguer who gained fame in 1935 when he pitched a perfect game, retiring twenty-seven Tulsa batters in succession, has joined the army. Eddie wore the Galveston uniform in '35 but he is pitching now for the Fort Riley, Kas., Cavalry Replacement Training Center team. And doing a good job of it.

Dr. Stuart Buppert, unattached; Dr. Averil Stowell, Mount Pleasant; and Ed Norton, Clifton Park, will lead the field to the first tee for the eighteen-hole qualifying round. Medal play will continue throughout the day and match play will start on Friday and continue through Saturday over the Five Farms course.

Novikoff Hits After Throwing Clippings Away

Mad Russian Boosts Average 91 Points in Two Weeks to .276

By JERRY WEINSTEIN

PHILADELPHIA, June 24. (P)—Lou Novikoff threw away his clippings and look what happened—his batting average soared ninety-one points in less than two weeks and he's no longer the Mad Russian.

The husky Chicago Cubs outfielder was batting an anemic .185 when the club left Chicago for its swing through the National League's Eastern cities. Yesterday, he pounded a home run and a single in five trips to the plate against the Phils to boost his mark to .276.

"I tried too hard to live up to all that publicity when I broke in last year," Lou said today. "I came up again this season as a failure—and with the pressure off, I suddenly and myself hitting again."

Pitchers Look Different

Just like every other rookie, Novikoff felt the world was cruel when he entered the majors. He thought everyone his enemy, particularly rival pitchers.

"Now everyone treats me just swell," Lou said. "Even the pitchers are more friendly. They're still just as tough as they were last season but they look different to me now that I'm hitting again."

Put down as a flop, he didn't start the season in left field for the Cubs but decorated the bench and saw action only occasionally as a pinch hitter.

"Then Jimmy Wilson put me in the lineup," Lou recalled. "It gave me a lot of confidence when he kept me there even though I was hitting below .200. I'm glad I've improved for Jimmy's sake, as well as my own."

Hasn't Changed Style
The 185-pound, 26-year-old Novikoff hasn't changed his stance or any other feature of his batting style since he came up to the majors as the Pacific Coast batting champion of 1940 with a .363 average.

He wasn't particularly disturbed by the publicity he received, even the tag of "The Mad Russian," for, says Lou:

"I don't care what they call me just so they call my turn at bat."

"Buddy" Lewis Plays Under Assumed Name

PINE BLUFF, Ark., June 24. (P)—Bleacherites thought that fellow "Merle Johnson" who played first base and pitched a couple of innings for the Painters Union team in a South Arkansas sandlot league looked pretty good.

Then the secret slipped out. "Johnson" is John K. "Buddy" Lewis, third sacker and outfielder for the Washington Senators and a member of the 1938 American League all-stars. Now an aviation cadet at Pine Bluff, Lewis said he played under an assumed name because he didn't want any publicity.

"I just wanted a good work-out in case my training schedule can be arranged to allow me to play with Mickey Cochrane's All-Service team against the American League All-Stars in Cleveland July 7," he grinned.

WHEN TO OPEN TRUMP
THERE ARE two standard situations in which the lead of a trump is pointed to as probably the most logical defensive opening. One of these everybody knows—the cross-ruff kind of bidding during which both the declarer and his partner showed a side suit in addition to the one finally chosen as trumps. The other is that in which the declarer has shown two suits, and the dummy indicated probable shortness in one of them, which can help set up by ruffing. Sometimes both situations are more or less combined.

Close your eyes, put yourself in the position of North and let somebody read that bidding to you, without ever looking at any of the hands. Can't you tell that West has either a singleton or blank in diamonds, plus at least a couple of clubs with an honor and at least ten major suit cards? Also that East has great length in diamonds, at least three hearts, probably about three clubs and not over one or two spades? Can't you visualize West ruffing his spades in dummy, whether he ruffs dummy's diamonds or not?

North was unable to make such a deduction. Hoping for a ruff himself, he led the spade J, and really started the declarer on his plan, having made the lead which would have been called if allowed. That was won by the A, then a spade ruffed by North's heart J, a club returned to the A, a third spade led and ruffed by North's A, another club returned to the K, diamond A called for a discard of the spade 8, diamond 2 ruffed, spade 9 ruffed by the heart 4, the heart 10 sent through, the 8 overtaken by the 9, the Q dropped by the K, heart 6 and spade K cashed, making five odd.

Now you try to make the contract and overtrick if North leads the heart A and then the J, as the bidding indicates he should. That defense cooks your goose.

Dr. H. W. Hodgson, Medical Pioneer, Dies in LaVale

Practiced Medicine Here for Fifty-six Years; Recalled Civil War

Dr. Henry Watson Hodgson, 95, a pioneer in medicine in Cumberland where he practiced for fifty-six years, died at 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning at his home in LaVale, after an illness of pneumonia. He would have celebrated his ninety-sixth birthday August 12.

Dr. Hodgson retired three years ago after practicing medicine for seventy-two years. He had been in ill health for the past two years and broke his hip in a fall about eight weeks ago. Pneumonia followed the injury.

A son of the late William and Elizabeth Milhon Hodgson, he was born in Winchester, Va., in 1846. He was married in October, 1872, to Miss Roberta Susan Parker, who resided on a farm near Springfield, W. Va. She died about twenty-five years ago.

Hid Horses from Yankees

Although he was not a veteran of the Civil War, Dr. Hodgson frequently reminisced about battles he saw fought near Winchester. A Confederate sympathizer during the war, he recalled helping his brother hide the family horses from the Union army.

After receiving his first education at Shenandoah Valley Academy, Winchester, Dr. Hodgson read medicine with a Dr. Love there and then continued his medical education at the University of Virginia and the Washington University of Medicine, Baltimore.

When his studies were completed he moved to Frankfort, W. Va., now Fort Ashby, where he practiced medicine for seventeen years and then moved to Cumberland. He was the first physician in this section to use diphtheria anti-toxin and one of the first here to use the X-ray.

Rode Horseback to Reach Patients

During the early days of his professional career, Dr. Hodgson frequently rode horseback and traveled by horse and carriage or sleigh to reach his patients. He was one of the first persons in Cumberland to purchase a Model-T Ford.

Besides being president of the Allegany and Garrett Counties Medical Society three times, Dr. Hodgson was one of the oldest Masons in this section, being a member of Potomac Lodge, No. 100, A. F. and A. Masons, for more than fifty years. He also was a member of Chosen Friends Lodge, No. 34, I.O.O.F.

Surviving are one sister, Mrs. James Flinn, Winchester; one son, Dr. H. M. Hodgson, Lonaconing; four daughters, Misses Lillian P. and Katherine E. Hodgson, both LaVale; Miss Ella Hodgson, Washington, D. C.; and Mrs. R. D. Goodrich, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; six grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Friday at his late residence with the Rev. W. N. Michael, pastor of Centre street Methodist church, officiating. Interment will be in Rose Hill cemetery. It is requested that flowers be omitted.

Rationing Board Sets New Deadline For Sugar Users

Final Date for Canning Needs Is Changed from Today to June 30

Extension of the deadline for issuance of purchase certificates for sugar for spring canning from today until Tuesday, June 30, was announced yesterday by War Price and Rationing Board No. 1-1.

Miles G. Thompson, clerk to the board, emphasized that the extension is being made for the accommodation only of those who have not already received sugar certificates for spring canning.

Today was originally fixed as the final day to apply for certificates but yesterday's rush caused Robert E. Barnard, chairman, to extend the deadline date to next week. Four hundred applications were received yesterday at the board office in the Union street county office building.

Those needing sugar for spring canning are requested to apply for certificates between the hours of 9 a. m. and noon on the five remaining days specified by the board. Leo H. McCormick, state administrator of the Office of Price Administration, yesterday advised the local board that motorists will be required to register for gasoline rationing on July 9, 10 and 11 in Allegany county public schools. Charles L. Kopp, county superintendent, will be in charge of the registration for this county.

Two Suits by Tilling Are Filed in Court

Two suits were filed by tilling yesterday in circuit court. John E. Bradley filed suit against the Cumberland and Westernport Transit Company through Edward J. Ryan and I. Duke Avnet, attorneys.

Albert A. Doub, Sr., and Albert A. Doub, Jr. docketed a suit against the Campbell Coal Company in behalf of their client, Charles D. Smith.

Man Tarring Roof Badly Hurt in Fall

Hollis Alkire, 71, Drops Twenty-five Feet from Local House Top

Hollis Alkire, 71, 3 Hay street, was badly injured yesterday afternoon when he fell twenty-five feet from a house roof he was tarring at 416 Columbia street.

At Allegany hospital where Alkire was taken for treatment, his condition was described as "fair." He is suffering from a possible concussion of the brain, undetermined chest injuries, fractured right lower arm and a laceration on his forehead.

The house where Alkire fell is unoccupied at the present time but is owned by L. H. Ash, 324 Columbia street. Repairs are being made to the property and Alkire was tarring the roof when he fell about 3 p. m. He was taken to the hospital in Stein's ambulance.

Last week the Methodist church in Mt. Savage celebrated Children's Sunday. The minister was trying to impress upon the children the importance of religion. He said all the children knew the value of the three "R's" which are taught in school—reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic. "Now," he said, "there is another 'R' that is even more important than these three. I wonder if any of you can tell me what it is."

A small youngster, eager to impress the congregation with her knowledge, arose and quickly answered, "Ration".

Quite naturally the congregation and minister were surprised—anybody would say the young girl is keeping up with current events.

City officials ordered the sand pile at the children's wading pool in Constitution park concreted over and it has proved very satisfactory to most adults.

But it's a good thing those little toddlers who used the pool last year can't vote. Comments by the majority of the youngsters is, to say the least not exactly complimentary.

"Boy! how they loved that old sand pile," is the sentiment generally expressed.

Maybe the sand is being used as part of the civilian defense precautionary measures against incendiary bombs.

Last night again the News was called to settle an argument about a word in Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. Maybe by printing the word in question Chatter will save other persons calling in. The caller wanted to know whether the word was "fathers" or "forefathers", so with the thought of imparting information to anyone else who may be interested the first part of the quotation follows:

"Four score and seven years ago our fathers"

The family dentist should be considered as a friendly guardian of one's health," is the advice of Dr. Richard C. Leonard, chief, division of oral hygiene, Maryland State Department of Health.

"It is particularly essential," Dr. Leonard says, "that children have this attitude toward dentists. A recent bulletin from the American Dental Association stresses this health factor as follows:

"Early establishment of dental health habits will help a child throughout life. Habits of neglect are difficult to overcome in later years, when strong, clean teeth are vital to health and happiness.

"Parents should teach the child that the dentist is his friend. They should not allow him to receive the impression that a visit to the dentist means unpleasantness and pain. Such impressions are usually created in a child's mind before he ever sees the dentist. Often, they are created by careless conversation and by misinformation given out by older children and even by older members of his family.

"A child should become acquainted with the atmosphere of a dental office and the ministrations of the dentist at two and a half or three years of age."

Refusing Entrance To Gaming Room Charge Is Entered Against Shroud

A charge of refusing entrance to a gaming room was entered against Robert Shroud, Jr., 117 Baltimore street, operator of the Boy's Club, at 3 o'clock yesterday morning by Officers P. C. Jenkins, D. J. Racey and J. E. Sherry.

John J. Treiber, assistant chief of police, said Shroud refused to open the door of the establishment when the officers demanded it. He said the law reads that anyone who fails to open a door when properly notified is subject to a fine of $20.

Shroud was released on bond of $20 for a hearing in police court Friday morning.

WAR STAMP SALES BOOTH—Sheila Davis is shown buying war stamps from Helen Skelly, who is outfitted in a patriotic costume. At the right is Sondra Schindler who is waiting her turn to purchase war stamps to aid the United States in its fight against the Axis powers. The booth is the first established in the city and is located in the McCory store Baltimore street. P. E. Myers, manager, said the store hopes to sell $2,000 worth of war stamps and bonds.

80 Appointments Made for League Clinic in July

269 Children Examined, 74 Recommended for Hospital Care in May

Eighty appointments have been made for the cerebral palsy clinic to be held July 6, 7 and 8 in the headquarters of the Allegany County League for Crippled Children, Bedford street. It was announced yesterday by Miss Vivian Lambert, executive secretary.

Seventy-six children are from Allegany and four from Garrett counties. Seven new cases are listed. The clinic will be in charge of Dr. Winthrop Phelps, of Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, and will open at 9 a. m. Only those who have made appointments will be seen.

May Report Given

The May report of the league showed that 269 children were examined at two clinics conducted here, seventy-four were recommended for hospital admission and fourteen individuals were discharged from the service. There were eight hospital admissions in May, six were discharged from hospitals during the month and five were receiving hospitalization on May 30. Seven admissions are reported for June. One child is receiving treatment in Union Memorial hospital, Baltimore, while the others are patients in Children's hospital, Baltimore.

Dr. George E. Bennett and Dr. David Weinberg examined 208 children at the orthopedic clinic May 1-2, at which forty-one were recommended for hospital admission and twelve individuals were discharged. Dr. Edward Kitiowski, who conducted the plastic surgery clinic on May 23 examined sixty-one children, recommended thirty-three for hospital care and discharged two from the service.

New Shoes Provided

Miss Lambert said that the league provided thirty-one new pairs of shoes and seven new braces during the month of May.

CITY CLERK PREDICTS SLUMP IN REVENUES FROM GAS STATIONS

Quite a slump in revenues from gasoline service stations is anticipated for the fiscal year 1942-43 as a result of the gasoline rationing program, according to Samuel E. Grimmering, city clerk.

Grimmering said that the income from gasoline stations alone for the year which ends July 1 amounted to $2,575. This amount included licenses for 162 pumps at sixty-eight stations operating within the city limits.

The license fee is $15 a single pump and $25 a double pump. Due to the rationing program, Grimmering said that many stations in operation and as a result the city's revenues from this type of license will show quite a decrease compared to the amount collected for the past year.

At the time the city levy was being prepared Grimmering advised Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, of the impending slump due to the rationing program and a reduction of approximately $1,000 was made to take care of the falling off in revenues from this particular type of business.

Licenses for the new fiscal year are due July 1.

Ridgeley Boy Breaks Arm

Donald Riffe, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Riffe, Ridgeley, W. Va., Route 1, was treated in Allegany hospital at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon for a fractured right arm, suffered when he fell backwards from a porch banister at his home at 1:30 p. m.

Legion Post Planning Drive for Collection Of Phonograph Records

Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, will conduct a two weeks' campaign to collect old phonograph records, commencing Monday, July 20, John R. Kelly, commander, announced last evening.

Kelly said that the aid of local civic and service clubs will be enlisted.

The purpose of the campaign is to obtain shellac from the old records to be used in the manufacture of new records for the United Service Organizations. There is a shortage of shellac due to its use for war purposes and a means of obtaining a supply is through the collection of old phonograph discs.

The campaign here is part of a nation-wide drive to collect 37,500,000 old records. The records will be accepted whole or broken by the local Legion post.

Work on Airport Is Progressing Very Slowly

Today Marks Four Hundred and Thirty-fifth Day of Project

Today marks the four hundred and thirty-fifth day that work has been going on at the new Cumberland Airport, just across the river near Wiley Ford.

The project has actually been underway longer than that because it was early in 1939 when the site was first proposed. In May 1939 a tentative layout was prepared. On August 4, 1939, certain changes were suggested by A. H. Wessell, regional airport engineer for the C. A. A. Preliminary drawings, including suggestions by Wessell were completed in January 1940.

The mayor and city council of Cumberland directed the city engineer in March, 1940, to complete the drawings.

Options Are Obtained

Option on most of the land was obtained Tuesday, June 11, 1940. The mayor and city council issued an order authorizing the execution of the options.

Work was started on a topographical survey, but was never completed.

Late in October, 1940, a conference was held in Harrisburg, Pa., between Wessell, the mayor and city council, the city engineer, the city solicitor and members of the airport committee of the chamber of commerce. At that time Wessell explained the necessity of completing plans for the project for submission to the War department and the C. A. A., not later than November 15, 1940.

The plans were completed on time and the project was approved.

Progress Is Slow

In January 1941 the mayor and council submitted application for a W.P.A. project covering the development of the airport. Work on clearing the land started April 17, 1941, or 435 days ago. Almost two years had passed from the time the project was first suggested.

To date, some progress has been shown at the airport site, but there are still several hundred thousand square feet of dirt to be moved, much grading to be done and the runways paved. Work has started on paving one runway, but was at a standstill this week. Some of the machinery at the site is idle and heavily rusted, indicating little or no activity. Some dirt is being moved, but progress is slow.
